INTRODUCTION.

Nowhere in the Pine Tree State are the scenic beauties of the famous Oxford Hills surpassed in natural variation of rugged hill and quiet dale, in the grandeur of its lofty peaks and towering visions of the snow capped White Mountains which overshadow its southern extremity, or in the natural purity of lake and stream and the stimulating freshness of its clear atmosphere. Through the southern part of the county winds the limpid Saco, fresh from its sparkling springs on the sides of the highest elevations in New England. Enlarged by frequent confluent tributaries it has become a stream of considerable size when it crosses the New Hampshire line into Fryeburg thirty miles from its source. The extensive intervales of this locality bespeak a former lake which must have covered a large area until its bed became gradually filled by the sediment brought down from the upper course of the Saco valley and by frequent spring freshets. These lands now form some of the most fertile and prosperous farms in the state. Other broad and less fertile areas known as plains have produced immense quantities of excellent pine timber, while the higher and more rugged territory is rich in a variety of mineral deposits, valuable timber areas and grazing fields.

The Sokokis Indians, later known as the Pequawket tribe, were the earliest known inhabitants of this region. It was early explored by adventurers and hunters from the colonies, and in May, 1725, was fought the memorable and lamentable battle near Lovewell's Pond between Capt. Lovewell and the Pequawket warriors.

The first grant of a township on the upper Saco was made in 1762, to Gen. Joseph Frye, a distinguished soldier during the French and Indian Wars. A grant was very soon afterwards made to Capt. Henry Young Brown, also a soldier in the French War. Conway was granted in 1765, to a number of proprietors by Gov. Benning Wentworth of New Hampshire. Lovell was granted to the officers and soldiers who participated in the Pequawket expedition, and their heirs, about 1780. Hiram is made up of various land sales, including a large tract bought in 1790, by Gen. Peleg Wadsworth. Porter was purchased by a company of men in 1795. Various other grants and purchases gave title to other lands in this vicinity including the Fryeburg Academy Grant in Denmark, made in 1792, and Fryeburg addition, now the southern half of the town of Stow. All titles except Conway were derived from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, of which political division this state formed a province until 1820.

The territory now embraced by the County of Oxford was originally a part of York county, as, in fact was the whole of Maine. In 1760, Cumberland county was formed, embracing the whole of the present Oxford, with the exception of a few western towns. Oxford county was formed by an act approved Mar. 4, 1805, from portions of York and Cumberland. Paris was made the shire town, with a Registry of Deeds at Fryeburg for the Western District. In 1838, the county of Franklin was erected, taking from Oxford five towns and a large number of plantations, constituting more than half its territory. In 1854, two other towns were relinquished to form Androscoggin county. It now has thirty five towns and three organized plantations, together with unorganized lands, making a total area of about 1700 square miles.

For many years all transportation and trafic in this region was carried on by stage lines which threaded their way to the various scattered settlements forming a system similar to the far reaching Saco with its numerous tributaries, whose winding valleys were traced by many highways. With the opening of the Portland & Ogdensburg railroad in 1871, new possibilities were offered. Excellent markets were brought into close connection, or better, the natural beauties of the region which were then becoming recognized outside, were within easy reach of the increasing multitude who should flock here during the hot summer months to enjoy the refreshing and health giving air. Lumbering and agriculture, together with the entertainment of summer visitors form the principal sources of wealth.

We would not close this chapter without mentioning the many honorable and distinguished men and women who have gone out from these homes, many of them from humble homes, who have brought honor to their native towns. Every town can show a goodly list of these men, heroes of the battlefield or bench, men who have advanced entirely by their own merit and energy to positions of responsibility and honor in the state or nation, or in private life. These are the men who have inherited the fortitude and energy of their fathers and mothers, who could so long and nobly withstand the rigors and hardships of the New England frontier, until their scattered settlements should become an important part of a prosperous community.

THE SOKOKIS INDIANS.

Before the encroachment of pale faced settlers, the entire valley of the Saco and its tributaries was peopled by the numerous Sokokis Indians. These were considered the parent tribe of the Abenaki Nation, which at one time peopled the whole of Maine. One of the most eloquent and statesmanlike of their chiefs once said in council, "We received our lands from the Great Father of Life; we hold only from Him." Their title was unquestionable and unmolested, they roamed the valley from their village at the Lower Falls (Saco) to the settlement on the great bend, on the intervales of Fryeburg. These were in many respects a noble race of red men, evincing unmistakable evidence of having descended from a higher state, and still retained a fine sense of honor and personal dignity.

The Sokokis tribe was once so numerous that they could call nine hundred warriors to arms, but war and pestilence reduced their number to a mere handful. *The residence of the sagamores was on Indian Island, above the lower falls. Among the names of the chiefs who dwelt hereabout were those of Capt. Sunday, the two Heagons, and Squando who succeeded Fluellen. For some years these Indians lived with the white settlers in peace and quietness, some of them acquiring a fair knowledge of the English language by their intercourse. When the increasing number of colonists encroached upon their lands, and hatred and discontent had been engendered by the ill treatment of the whites, these Indians gradually moved up river and joined their brethren who lived in the villages at Pequawket and on the Ossipee.

As early as 1615, there were two branches of the Sokokis tribe under the leadership of two subordinate chiefs. One of these communities was the Pequawket settlement and the other was at the mouth of the Great Ossipee, where before King Phillip's War, they employed English carpenters from down river to build them a strong timber fort, having stockaded walls fourteen feet in height, to protect them against the blood-thirsty Mohawks whose coming these Indians anticipated. Upon the removal of these people from the locality of their early home on the lower waters of the river to the interior, their names were changed to Pequawkets and Ossipees; the former word meaning the crooked place, the other either taking the name of or giving their name to the river and lake upon which they lived.

A terrible fatal pestilence, thought to have been the small pox, which prevailed in 1617 and 1618 among the Indians of this and other tribes, swept them away by thousands, some of the tribes having become extinct from its effects. At a treaty assembled at Sagadahoc in 1720, there were delegates from the Winnesaukes, the Ossipees, and the Pequawkets. When the treaty was holden in Portsmouth in 1713, the Pequawket chiefs were present. Adeawando and Scawesco signed the articles of agreement with a cross at the treaty held at Arrowsic in 1717.

Some have assumed that the whole community of the Pequawkets lived together on the intervale at Fryeburg in a compact village. This conjecture is not true, for we find that these keen warriors had out-posts some distance above and below the village to guard against surprise. While the larger body of the Indians lived on the great water loop, there were clusters of houses in various places down the Saco valley. One of these hamlets was situated just south of Indian Hill in North Conway and consisted of about twenty lodges. In the present town of Hiram, not far from the mouth of the Great Ossipee river, there is a high bluff upon the top of which there is a nearly level plateau of about two acres in extent where several families of the Sokokis Indians once lived. A peculiar Indian burial mound seventy-five feet long, fifty feet wide and about twenty-five feet high was discovered on the west side of Lake Ossipee and south of Lovewell's river soon after the Revolution. This mound, which is located upon a beautiful intervale is filled with the skeletons of thousands of Indians entomed in a sitting posture and circling around a common center facing outward. These form concentric circles which were added one after another until the outer one was formed when another tier was begun above them. The bodies seem to have been packed closely together and covered with about two feet of coarse sand, while around the foot of the mound were placed stones taken from the river bed to prevent the mound from washing down. This mound is estimated to contain no less than eight or ten thousand skeletons which would seem to speak of either a numerous or a long established race in this locality.

The Pequawkets seem to have been a peaceful race when not molested by hostile tribes or encroaching settlers. There is no record of any hostile action on their part to warrant the expedition against them made by Capt. Lovewell and his company in 1725. On the other hand there is a record in the office of the Secretary of State in Boston of a petition made by John Lovewell, Josiah Farwell and Jonathan Robbins for a bounty to be paid for scalps of "enemy Indians" that they might be able to take while ranging the woods for the period of one year for that purpose. A liberal bounty was offered, and a company of forty-six men was organized by Capt. Lovewell for an expedition against the Pequawket settlement.

THE PEQUAWKET EXPEDITION.

On April 16, the company bade farewell to their friends and kindred in Dunstable, Mass., the home of many of the party, and proceeded to Contoocook, and to the west shore of Ossipee Lake. Here they halted and erected a fort which should serve as a rallying point and base of supplies. By this time two men had become disabled. One had returned home accompanied by a friend, Benj. Kidder was left at the fort, with the surgeon and a guard of eight. The remaining thirty-four men took up the trail to Pequawket with good courage.

On Tuesday, two days before the battle, the party were suspicious that they had been discovered by the enemy, and on Friday night the guard heard them creeping through the underbrush about their encampment. At an early hour Saturday morning, May 8th, while they were yet at their devotions, the report of a gun was heard, and soon an Indian was seen standing upon a point of land extending into Saco (now Lovewell's) pond. They supposed this was a decoy, to draw them into ambush. A conference was immediately held to determine what course to pursue. The men were anxious for an engagement, but Capt. Lovewell seems to have assented against his wishes. They prepared for action. Assuming that the foe was still in front he ordered the men to lay down their packs that they might advance with greater caution and be less hampered in the fight. When the party had proceeded slowly for about a mile they discovered an Indian approaching among the trees. Several discharged their pieces at him. He returned the fire and seriously wounded Capt. Lovewell with a load of buckshot. Ensign Wyman then shot the Indian and Chaplain Frye scalped him.

Meanwhile Paugus, the Indian chief, with eighty stalwart warriors had been watching every movement from the rear. They had discovered the hidden packs and learned the small number of the attacking party. When Lovewell's company returned to secure their provisions and had reached a tract of land covered with pines a little way back from the pond, the Indians rose from ambush in their front and rear in two parties with guns aimed; the whites also presented their guns and advanced to meet the foe.

Approaching within twenty yards of each other both parties fired. The Indians were badly cut to pieces and took shelter in a clump of low growing pines. Already nine of the attacking party had fallen dead, including Capt. Lovewell. Three were fatally wounded. Ensign Wyman ordered the remaining soldiers to retreat to the pond. Until the going down of the sun the battle went on with much vigor.

About the middle of the afternoon Chaplain Frye fell, seriously wounded. After falling he was heard to pray for the preservation of his comrades. For eight hours the fight had continued and at times was vehement. The whites were obliged to adopt the Indian mode of warfare; they kept near together, each selecting a position for his own safety. Ensign Wyman stealthily crept to a position to cover Paugus, the chief, whom he shot dead. The tradition that Paugus was killed at the water's edge by Chamberlain when they had both gone down to wash their guns was not given as a part of this engagement until some fifty years later* When darkness fell the Indians withdrew, leaving their dead on the battlefield.

When the moon arose about midnight the survivors of Lovewell's party assembled, faint and exhausted. There were but nine unhurt, eleven were seriously wounded, Jacob Farrar was found to be dying, and two others were unable to rise. Solomon Keyes could not be found. A retreat was decided upon, but the wounded men were unable to proceed far. When they had gone something more than a mile, four of the wounded—Lieut. Farwell, Chaplain Frye, and privates, Jones and Davis, could no longer move forward. They importuned their comrades to push toward the Ossipee fort and secure a rescuing party to carry them in. When the men reached the fort, where the guard had been left, to their consternation they found the men had deserted the place and nearly all the provisions gone. Here was another trying experience for the soldiers, who now numbered but nine. If they returned to their wounded comrades whom they had left behind, they feared starvation for themselves as well as for their comrades. The only alternative seemed to be to leave them to their fate. They pressed forward toward Dunstable and for four days it is stated they did not taste food. They then brought down some partridges and squirrels which they roasted and which gave them strength for the rest of the journey. They succeeded in reaching Dunstable, the greater part of them on May 13th, the others two days later. Two of the men, Josiah Jones and Eleazer

Davis, who were left to perish finally reached Berwick. Chaplain Frye and Lieut. Farwell did not survive.

Such was the effect on the attacking party. The Pequawkets suffered nearly as badly, and this was the death blow to their national power. According to the census of the Indians taken by Capt. Giles the following year they had but 24 fighting men left among them, and some of these carried serious wounds received in the fight. The news of the defeat and disaster cast widespread sorrow throughout the Massachusetts homes from which the soldiers had gone. A party was immediately sent to the battle ground and the bodies of the Captain and ten of his men were buried at the foot of an ancient pine. A monument has since been erected to mark the spot. The General Court appropriated 1500 pounds, and a grant of the lands now comprising the towns of Lovell and Sweden to the survivors and heirs of the men who were lost. This we should consider a very liberal reward for such a murderous undertaking attempted chiefly for mercenary purposes upon a peaceful settlement of a disappearing race of men.

*History of Saco Valley Settlements.

Many of the Pequawkets removed to Canada after the battle together with Adeawando, their chief, and united with the St. Francis tribe. At the beginning of the war with France the remnant of the tribe that had lingered around the old home place of their ancestors on the Saco, expressed a desire to live with the whites, and they were accordingly removed to a suitable place about fifty miles from Boston, where was good fowling and fishing. These men were present at the Treaty of Falmouth in 1749, between the Eastern Indians and the whites. After the fall of Quebec a few members of the tribe remained about the head waters of the Connecticut until the beginning of the Revolution. The last mention of the tribe living at Pequawket was in a petition to the General Court dated at Fryeburg, in which the able bodied men asked for guns, ammunition and blankets "for fourteen warriors." These men served faithfully on the patriot side and were liberally rewarded by the government. After the war they returned to their families in the vicinity of Fryeburg where they were well remembered by the venerable people of the last generation. Among those remembered were Tom Heagon, Old Philip and Swanson. Philip, the last known chief of the Pequawkets, signed a deed in 1796, conveying the last rights of his tribe in Maine and New Hampshire to the men who had in two brief centuries, usurped their lands and with disease, annihilated the people that had for unknown centuries held unquestionable title to the entire Saco Valley.

History of Brownfield.

GRANTS TO HENRY YOUNG BROWN.

The earliest grant of land within the present town of Brownfield was made in 1764, in response to a petition sent by Capt. Henry Young Brown to the General Court of Massachusetts, under date of May, 1763. His prayer was as follow:—"That as there are a quantity of unappropriated lands upon Saco River above Colonel Frye's purchase belonging to the Province, and your Memorialist, being desirous of purchasing a township there for immediate settlement, humbly begs he may be allowed that liberty."

The grant made was to be of the contents of six miles square, to be located in some place on either or both sides of the Saco, above the township owned by Col. Joseph Frye, provided it did not interfere with any former grant. By the plans of the survey made by Brown the township was made to include lands on both sides of the Saco. An allowance of 6500 acres was made over the amount of six miles square for roads, ponds, bogs, sag of chain, etc.

The usual conditions were placed upon the grant, viz. that 59 families should be settled, and each should build within the term of five years from the date of the grant, a house twenty feet by eighteen, and seven foot stud. Each was to clear for tillage and pasture a space of seven acres. One sixty-fourth part of the land was to be granted the first settled Protestant Minister, a like amount for the support of the ministry, two sixty-fourth parts for Harvard College, and one sixty-fourth part for local schools, and that the town should within ten years have a Protestant minister settled there.

Soon after the settlement was begun it was found the western portion of the township had been granted by the governor of New Hampshire and that these proprietors had begun a settlement. Complaints were made and both states appointed committees to settle the location of the state line. It was then found that a large part of the township surveyed and laid out by Capt. Brown was in New Hampshire. The state line was established in 1766. In March of the following year a grant of 8544 acres lying to the east of the earlier grant was made Capt. Brown, to compensate for his loss. By this change in the grant the conditions of settlement were somewhat altered, 38 families to be settled by June 10, 1870.*

The first opening in town was made in 1765, by Capt. Brown and others to whom he had conveyed rights. A stately house was erected by Mr. Brown not long after, and it was here that the Rev. Paul Coffin, D. D., an old time circuit rider, was entertained in 1768. This house however, was located in that part of Brown's grant which was annexed to Fryeburg, and the house which is still standing, has been removed to Main street in that village.

We are unable to name the settlers in the order of their arrival here. James Howard and his wife, Susanna (Wilson) came to the settlement in 1772-3 from Woburn, Mass. Of their eight children, then nearly grown up, Samuel settled in Brownfield. He was one of the Boston Tea Party, and served in the Revolution. He located in Brownfield near "ten mile mill." Joseph, his oldest brother came here in 1786, with his wife Rebecca (Gleason) of Billerica, Mass. Hon. Joseph Howard, their fourth son, born in 1800, became an able and well known lawyer of Portland.

Curtis Bean and wife, Applia (Merrill) came to Brownfield from Poplin (now Fremont) N. H., about 1775, and settled on the Gibson farm near Fryeburg line. They had nine children nearly all of whom settled in this and surrounding towns. Of these were Joseph, Thomas, Dudley, James, Nathaniel and Nathan. The father died in 1833, at the age of 102. Amos Poor was an early settler near the present depot. Samuel Mansfield who came from Henniker, N. H., as did many of the settlers of this town, located just across Shepherd river, above the station. Francis Kimball was above the depot. Benj. Epps was living on the Gibson farm near the Fryeburg line prior to 1777. He purchased 900 acres of Henry Young Brown, Mar. 10, 1774, while yet a resident of Danvers, Mass. This farm passed to Timothy Gibson about 1798, who built the first mill erected in that part of the town. He was a leading man in the community and raised up a large family of sons and daughters. Hon. Paris Gibson born in Brownfield, July 1, 1831, was his grandson. He removed to Montana, which state he has served in the United States Senate.

John Goodenow, the father of one of the most illustrious families of Maine, came to this town in 1802, from Henniker, N. H. His father of the same name lived with him at Brownfield during the last years of his life. He died in 1818, at the advanced age of 93 years. Of the sons of John Jr., John b. 1786, was a prominent lawyer for many years; Rufus K. b. 1790, graduated at West Point, commanded a company in the 1812 War, practiced law and was a member of the 31st Congress, in 1849. Daniel b. 1793, became an eminent lawyer and judge, served as speaker of the House of Representatives, Attorney general of the state in 1838, and justice of the Supreme court from 1855 to 1862. William G. b. 1796, was an eminent lawyer in Portland. Robert G. b. 1800, became an able lawyer, was state bank examiner, and a member of Congress in 1851.

Daniel Goodwin and Andrew Wentworth came in 1799. Gen. Daniel Bean was one of the leading men of the town during the first half of the last century. Born in Limerick in 1793, he removed to Brownfield when he had scarcely reached manhood, in 1812. He served in the defense of Portland in 1814, and was General of the 2d brigade, 6th division, Maine militia, in 1826; held many town offices, and was a leading merchant, in which he was succeeded by his sons, Maj. Sylvanus B. and Eli. B. He was the father of fourteen children, many of whom became prominent. He died in 1873.

Lancaster Hodges, colored b. 1771, in Danvers, Mass.,

came to Brownfield early in life with a family named Jacobs. For over three quarters of a century he made his home with the Gibsons, and died in 1878, at the age of 107. During the last fifty years of his life his eye sight failed him and he finally became totally blind. He was so familiar with the roads and by-ways however, that he could travel to all parts of the town and was a familiar character throughout the vicinity.

The following is a list of the petitioners who signed the petition for incorporation in 1799. This document asked for the name Dover for their township, but the present name was substituted in honor of the proprietor.

ACT OF INCORPORATION.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

In the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and two.

An act to incorporate the plantation called Brownfield, in the county of York into a town by the name of Brownfield and for annexing a part of said Brownfield to the town of Fryeburg.

Sect. 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same that the plantation heretofore called Brownfield in the county of York, as described within the following bounds, with the inhabitants thereon, be and hereby are incorporated into a town by the name of Brownfield. Beginning at the south corner of Fryeburg and running north 43½ degrees east, four hundred and ninety five rods to the north west (corner) of Brownfield on the east side of Saco River, then south 63 degrees east, seventeen hundred and seventeen rods to a tree marked; then south 30 degrees east, twelve hundred and twelve rods to Flintstown line; then south 62 degrees west, sixteen hundred and ninety-one rods to Saco river; then up said river as it tends to the place where Brownfield line comes to Saco river on the west side, then across said river south 62 degrees west, four hundred and eighty rods to the south corner of Brownfield; then north 28 degrees west, eighteen hundred and seventy-six rods to the north east corner of Porterfield; then south 76½ degrees west, five hundred and eighty rods to the line of New Hampshire; then north 6½ degrees east, to the line of that part of the plantation of Brownfield which in this act is set off to the town of "Fryeburg," then north 76½ degrees east, nine hundred and eighty-five rods to the bounds begun at; and the said town is hereby invested with all the powers and privileges, rights and immunities to which other towns are entitled by the constitution and laws of this Commonwealth.

Section 2 provided that Moses Ames, Esq., be empowered to issue a warrant calling the inhabitants together in town meeting.

Section 3 set off a part of Brownfield Plantation and annexed the same to the town of Fryeburg.

Section 4 provided for the proper apportionment of the debts, taxes and paupers of the plantation.

This act received the approving signature of Gov. Caleb Strong, Feb. 20, 1802, and became a law.

The first town meeting was called to assemble in the school house near John Miller's on Monday, April 5, following. Joseph Howard was chosen moderator and clerk; Joshua Ames, John Watson and Asa Osgood were elected selectmen; and Josiah Spring was chosen constable. No treasurer was needed as yet.

A warrant calling a plantation meeting* was issued by

*The earliest record of a plantation meeting in Brownfield was under date of Mar. 29, 1797, which was doubtless the earliest meeting for organization. Jas. Howard was made moderator; Henry Young Brown, plantation clerk; Joshua B. Osgood, Asa Osgood and Jos. Howard, assessors; and Wm. Howard, constable. This included that portion set off to Fryeburg.

the assessors of Brownfield plantation—signed by Joshua Ames and Francis Kimball—to be holden at the same time and place with the town meeting for the purpose of casting their votes for governor and other officers of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. For governor, Hon. Elbridge Gerry received forty votes and Gov. Caleb Strong, three. These figures doubtless represent nearly all the voting strength of the plantation at that time as an occasion of so much moment as the combined meetings would call out every settler. At this meeting the sum of $1300 was voted for highways; a very liberal amount for the number of families then resident here.

In the year 1806, the town lines of Brownfield were greatly changed. The portions known as Pleasant Mountain Gore and Foster's Grant were incorporated within Denmark and Hiram. A portion of Porterfield known as Cutler's Upper Grant, and a large portion of the grant to Jeremiah Hill et als, consisting of 18,600 acres, were annexed to Brownfield. Prior to this change the western line of Brownfield passed through the Centre village near the dwelling of Wm. and Selden Boynton, in a southeast direction to the line of Porter. The lines as then established between the towns of Denmark, Hiram, Porter and this town were agreed upon by a committee consisting of men from each town. The men chosen by Brownfield were Timothy Gibson, Lieut. Asa Osgood and Lieut. Cyrus Ingalls. By the new lines Lieut. Osgood became a citizen of Hiram and Lieut. Ingalls of Denmark.

From 1815 to 1826, town meetings were held in the school house in district No. 2. Previous to 1815, private homes were used. The first town house was ready for occupancy in 1827, and was the place of assembling until it was burned in 1852. Various places were used until the present house was completed on the site of the old one in 1861.

BROWNFIELD CHURCHES.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The earliest record we have of religious services in Brownfield is found in the diary of Rev. Paul Coffin of Buxton, an itinerant missionary preacher who was entertained at the house of Mr. Brown in 1768. He was followed by other itinerants of different denominations, including Rev. Tillius Howe who came from Henniker, N. H., about the same time as Rev. Mr. Rice, to reside in this town. No church seems to have been formed until the year 1804, when the Congregational church was gathered and Rev. Jacob Rice installed pastor. Mr. Rice was a Harvard graduate and was settled in Henniker, N. H., before coming to Brownfield. His salary here was to be one bushel of wheat per year from each member of his church and parish who were disposed or felt able to give it. He remained the faithful pastor until his death, which occurred suddenly in Feb., 1824. Following his death the church was supplied by several preachers including Rev. Mr. Southard and Rev. Daniel Newell. Rev. Geo. H. Brown was pastor here from 1827 to 1829, and supplied the churches in Hiram and Denmark. Rev. Jas. Carruthers preached in 1829 and 1830. In the latter year Rev. Chas. Soule was installed at Denmark and supplied this church and at Hiram, remaining until 1833. Several preachers were then employed until 1837, when Rev. David Gerry began his labors. On Christmas day 1839, he was installed pastor and remained until his death Nov. 5, 1856. He was a faithful pastor and an untiring worker, giving his life for the cause he loved. In 1838 a church building was erected and dedicated Nov. 6th.

Rev. Jas. Tatton was the next settled pastor remaining about two years when he was taken by death in June, 1859. Revs. John Boynton, J. G. Merrill, I. P. Smith, Nathaniel Richardson and H. S. Weston were the next preachers, supplying from three months to one year each. In 1867, Rev. Ezra B. Pike began his service of two years. Rev. E. S. Tingley was acting pastor in 1870-72, followed by N. H. Whittlesey in 1873.

Rev. E. S. Jordan became pastor in Mar. 1874, and remained twelve years, when he removed to Waltham, Mass. He was a very popular and successful minister. Rev. C. W. Luck was supply for four months in 1886. Rev. H. V. Emmons, pastor from 1887 to 1890. During the summer of 1890, Frank Davis, a native of Hiram, filled the pulpit. Rev. Edw. P. Eastman followed Mr. Davis in September and remained until May, 1894, when he went to Danbury, N. H. Mr. Randall, an Andover student, was here three months. Rev. C. S. Young from Fryeburg supplied during 1895 and 1896, and was followed by Rev. C. F. Sargent. Alexander J. Cameron preached here and at Hiram, beginning May 1, 1902. In 1905, he went to Winslow, and was succeeded by the present pastor, Rev. James J. G. Farr on Oct. 29 of that year. The church now has 54 members.

The present church edifice was erected in 1862, by Hon. Samuel Tyler at his own expense and deeded to the church. Samuel Spring of Portland gave the bell and others gave valuable furnishings. Four years later Mrs. Samuel Tyler presented the parsonage entirely furnished to the church. The old church was sold to the town for school purposes.

A Christian Endeavor Society was organized by Mr. Davis while supplying this church, July 24, 1890, which has proven of great aid in maintaining social services in the absence of a pastor.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Early itinerant preachers of this denomination ministered to the scattered settlements along the Saco for many years before a class was formed at Brownfield. In 1802, Rev. Asa Heath made an excursion to this vicinity, and in Sept. 1803, a society was organized and annexed to the Falmouth circuit. Conway circuit was formed a few years later and this church was regularly supplied until the year 1860, when it was united with Denmark. No meeting house was ever erected in town by this denomination. The early meetings were held in the town house. Later the Congregational house was frequently used, and after the erection of the new house the old church was regularly occupied for a while. Rev. Zachariah Gibson was an early local preacher and the last class leader. Since his death in 1862, no attempt has been made to hold services. From 1860, Revs. John M. Woodbury, P. E. Brown, Rev. Mr. Winter, Rev. Mr. Ballou and Rev. J. Stone were among the list of pastors that have preached to this church.

FREE BAPTIST CHURCH.

This church was organized Aug. 19, 1822, with twenty-six members, of whom Samuel Bean was chosen deacon and Geo. Dutch, clerk. The earliest recorded pastor was Rev. Daniel Brackett who served from 1831 to 1837. During his pastorate there arose a division in regard to temperance and missionary work which resulted in the disbanding of the church in 1834, which then numbered sixty-eight members. The same year a reorganized church was formed with seventeen members, and the first meeting house was erected by Daniel Bean. In 1838, Rev. Aaron Ayer was settled pastor. In 1840, Rev. E. H. Hart was called to act as pastor and was ordained in December, that year. He, Rev. Mr. Ayer and Rev. E. C. Willey filled the pulpit until 1850. Rev. Mr. Poindexter served for a time during the next year. Elder T. W. Hill commenced his labors in 1853, and was ordained Feb. 22, 1854. In 1857, Rev. Mr. Hart resumed the care of the church, holding the charge until May, 1861. Rev. R. McDonald then supplied a few months.

Rev. C. Hurlin was pastor from 1863 to 1868; Rev. E. C. Cook, from 1868 to 1871; Rev. A. G. Hill, in 1873; Rev. Uriah Chase, from 1874 to 1876; Rev. J. Granville, 1876 to 1878; Rev. C. H. Smith, 1878; Rev. W. H. Trafton, 1880; Rev. G. W. Pierce, 1883, for a few months. Rev. Newton Clough became pastor in 1885, and retained that office until his resignation in the spring of 1902, after seventeen years of faithful service. Rev. A. Lewis and Rev. John Farrell were the next pastors. Rev. N. W. Harrington, the present pastor began his services in the spring of 1905.

Isaac Linscott acted as deacon from June 26, 1835 to 1892, dying the latter year at the advanced age of ninety-five. The first Sunday school was organized in June, 1841. The parsonage was purchased of Oliver Storer before 1850. The present house of worship, which stands at Merrill's Corner was erected and dedicated in 1878. An Association of Christian Fidelity organized in 1891, is connected with this church.

UNIVERSALIST PARISH.

The First Universalist Parish or Society in Brownfield, was organized at a meeting held in the townhouse June 1, 1871, when Eli B. Bean was chosen moderator; Mrs. Mary O. Bean, clerk; Mrs. Lois M. Howard, treasurer; and Moses Howard, Selden Boynton and Geo. Bradbury prudential committee. In June, 1873, the first annual parish meeting was held here, though the house was not yet completed.

Miss A. G. Waltz was resident pastor from 1881 to 1886, when she was obliged to retire from the ministry on account of her health. Rev. Dr. Allen, pastor of the First Parish church of Portland, has recently supplied for a few Sabbaths during the summer.

EDUCATIONAL NOTES.

The question of education was never overlooked nor neglected by the pioneers of Brownfield. When enough families were settled to maintain a school, such was held in the primitive kitchen of some farm house whose superior size offered more room than the ordinary cabin of the settlers. A school house was erected at East Brownfield, near the junction of the present roads from Denmark and Fryeburg, prior to the incorporation of the town in 1802; and it was in this house that the town was organized that year.

In 1803, the town raised $50 for schools, and the selectmen (Joshua Ames, Cyrus Ingalls and John Goodenow) were chosen a committee to district the town. Three districts were formed but no houses built. In 1807, after the reconstruction of the town, it was again divided into school districts. It was then that the Centre District was called No. 2, and here in 1808, the first house was built under the new organization; located on the ridge at the foot of "Dug-Way" Hill.

More courage than education was generally demanded of the "Master" for many of the young men were more ready to display their physical strength than to acquire a superabundance of "book learning." From this beginning the number of districts increased in town until there were seventeen under the district system. The attendence at some schools often ran from seventy-five to one hundred; the mastery of which required the mastery of a general, the courage of a hero. Many of these large districts have now so decreased in attendence that the little old school house has become deserted, while the handful of children are driven to an adjoining district where enough can be gathered to form a school of from fifteen to thirty. At the Centre the old Congregational church has for many decades served to accommodate the village school.

Bean Memorial School building, formerly occupied by Messrs S. B. & E. B. Bean as a general store, was presented to the town in 1903, by Eli B. Bean, for grammar and high school purposes, so long as it should be used as such. H. D. Granville was the first principal of the high school in the fall of 1903, when there were 28 students. A. S. Bragg taught the school the following year. In 1905, C. E. Stetson and Geo. Haley were principals. Rufus Y. Storer is the present instructor.

TOWN INDUSTRIES.

The chief commercial industries of Brownfield have had to do with the manufacture or marketing of the various forest products. Agriculture has also been carried on extensively. Space forbids the separate mention of the several saw mills that were planted throughout different parts of the town, and their many owners who have operated them for the manufacture of first the boards for the early framed houses erected in town, and later for turning out all kind of long and short lumber, dowels, chairs, pails, barrel heads and shook, bobbins, bungs, car, spool and piano frame stock etc. For a detailed account of the several mills we would refer our readers to the "Reminiscences of Brownfield" published in 1901, by Mrs. Stickney.

Large quantities of lumber have been and are still sent down the Saco in "drives"; this was formerly used for masts and piling (the best of the pine, oak and spruce), ship timber (oak), long lumber and paper (poplar). Considerable business in tanning was at one time carried on by Nehemiah C. Rice which created a good market for hemlock bark.

The "old red mill" owned by Mr. Giles has stood for around a century while its companion "the yellow mill" which stood on the opposite side of the stream, and was used for grinding and wool carding, has long since disappeared, washed down stream with its foundations, the bridge and the land surrounding the mill in 1857, during the great freshet which occurred in April. Nathaniel Bean, while operating the carding mill not long before the freshet, turned out five tons, nine hundred and nine pounds of rolls in one year. Several mills are now operated as is shown by the business directory.

The corn factory built in 1888, at the Centre, was not long used for this purpose. It was later removed to East Brownfield where it was converted into the Uberty Hotel.

Among the men who have done much toward the business activity of Brownfield, we could mention Thomas Bean and his brother, who built the first mills at the Centre, on Shepherd's brook; John Bolt Miller, James Bean and Nathaniel Merrill, early millers at this mill; James Steele, Timothy Gibson, Sr., Samuel Tyler, who built a carding mill and cloth dressing establishment in 1818; Gen. Daniel Bean, J. M. Linscott, Sr. and Jr., Richard and Nathaniel Bean, N. C. Rice, L. A. Bradbury, Chas. E. Hill and many others connected with manufacturing, besides "dealers in merchandise" a list of whom would be equally long.

MILITARY ACCOUNT.

In colonial days every man must be a soldier to defend his family from the ravages of the Indians, or to protect them against the preying beasts of the forest. Several of the men who settled in Brownfield had seen service in the French and Indian Wars, and were well enured to the hardship of frontier life. It is said that Henry Young Brown was granted this township for his services in the French Wars; it appears however, from his application for the grant that it was acquired by purchase. John Goodenow, grandfather of the noted sons, was a soldier in the French and Indian wars and in the Revolution. Several men of Brownfield enlisted in the Revolution after settling here and many others came to the settlement after seeing service in the patriot army. The following list shows the names of many of these men: Chas. Fogg, Josiah Spring, Oliver Travis, Joseph Howard, Samuel Howard, (one of the Boston Tea Party), John Greenlaw, Benj. Blake, Daniel Tyler, John Goodenow, Jr., Seth L. Hamlin, John Stickney and Curtis Bean, who was also said to have served against the French and Indians.

During the four years from April 1861, a large percentage of the able bodied men were enlisted to defend the union while those at home raised large sums of money to defray the national expenses of the Civil War. The men of Brownfield fought shoulder-to-shoulder with the men from other towns of this vicinity, and by their noble conduct and valor made an honorable record that shall stand long after their last comrade has responded to the final roll call. The following list is taken from the records of Capt. Eli B. Bean, the venerable historian of the town and of his army comrades.

DANIEL A. BEAN POST.

Daniel A. Bean Post, Number 160, Dept. of Maine, G. A. R , was organized at Brownfield on Sept. 15, 1890, with thirty members. For several years this number increased, and much interest has been shown by the members in the workings of the post. Later years have thinned their ranks, but have only slightly dimmed their enthusiasm. Meetings are held in Eli B. Bean's Hall the first and third Mondays of each month.

The post derives its name from a son of the late Sylvanus B. Bean. The son was but sixteen years of age when entering the service. He was a kind but fearless soldier, and was the first of the men of Brownfield to fall in the field. Both Sylvanus B. and Eli B. Bean, brothers, were commissioned officers, serving as Captains and Majors in Quartermasters departments, and were each discharged with honorable records.

PROFESSIONAL MEN.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. Ira Towle was the earliest resident physician in town. Dr. Samuel S. Hadley came before 1820, and remained many years. Dr. Jesse P. Sweat of Parsonsfield came about 1833. At the breaking out of the Civil War he enlisted as a surgeon, and was succeeded in his local practice by his uncle, Dr. Wm. Sweat. Dr. Melvin A. Emery practiced here a short time. Dr. John A. Swan late of Cumberland Mills, studied with J. P. Sweat. Dr. W. L. Gatchell and his wife, Ella Gatchell, M. D., both practiced medicine here before removing to California. Dr. S. E. Wentworth was a resident physician. Others of short duration were Drs. Mitchell, Carroll and Sawyer.

Dr. H. F. Fitch, the oldest resident practicing physician, is a native of Sebago, and a graduate of Burlington, (Vt.), Med. School. After practicing about one year at Kezar Falls Dr. Fitch came to Brownfield Centre, about 1890, where he has remained. Dr. Clarence H. Marston, a graduate of Maine Med. School, is now in practice here.

Of the men of Brownfield who have practiced this profession in other places we would mention Drs. Jacob E. Stickney, many years a leading physician of Lancaster, N. H.; Wm. Wentworth of Cherryfield, Me.; Samuel Greenlaw, Clark Ela, Jacob B. Wentworth, practiced at Kennebunk, Me., Lowell and Roxbury, Mass.; John A. Sweat, son of Dr. J. P. Sweat, now at Great Falls, Mont.; W. G. Stickney, now at Beverly, Mass.; and Chas. M. Stanley, born in Hiram, resided many years in this town, and is now practicing medicine in Eaton, N. H.

LAWYERS.

The first that we have record of is the Goodenow family, five in number, all distinguished in their profession. Jos. Howard became judge of the S. J. Court at Portland after removing from this town. Chas. Smith and Alonzo White became lawyers after leaving Brownfield. A. R. Eaton practiced law in West Brownfield in connection with other business. Thos. P. Cleaves was located here several years, leaving his profession for a desirable position in Washington, D. C. J. L. Frink succeeded Mr. Cleaves in 1872, since which time he has been the only resident lawyer and has filled many offices of trust and usefulness.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Frost Mountain Grange, No. 180, P. of H. was organized at Brownfield Centre, Nov. 10, 1875. Chas. H. Fogg was elected master. Meetings were not long continued and the order remained dormant until the present grange was organized under the old charter. The reorganization was effected in the fall of 1901 at Odd Fellows Hall, where the meetings are now held. Samuel N. Adams was chosen master for the year 1901, and was re-elected for 1902. Carl E. Blake, John B. Danforth, Harry E. Durgin and James R. Hill have each been elected to this position. There are now 94 members. The principal officers for 1907 are Chas. Linscott, Master; Harry E. Walker, Over.; W. C. Stover, Lec.; Harry E. Durgin, Sec.

The Brownfield Public Library was started by the ladies of the Centre village as the Brownfield Library Association, about ten years ago. For some time the library was kept at the Odd Fellows Building, and has been cared for by different members of the association. The present neat little building was bought, moved to the lot and refitted for the needs of the library, which now contains about 640 volumes.

The first Post Office in Brownfield was established Dec. 9, 1803, and Joseph Howard appointed postmaster. This position he held until 1839, when he was succeeded by Richard Paine. The office at West Brownfield was established Jan. 5, 1829; discontinued in 1834; re-established in 1892, and again discontinued Aug. 15, 1903. "Brownfield Centre" office was established Jan. 27, 1834; discontinued Nov. 28, 1836. A post office was held at North Brownfield from Jan. 1857 to June 27, 1859, W. H. H. Miller, postmaster. The office at East Brownfield was not established until 1874, when Wm. H. Stickney was appointed postmaster.

Brownfield has never suffered severely from fires. One of the most destructive occurred Dec. 1, 1905, when three dwellings, their out houses and a meat market were burned at the Centre.

A powder horn in the possession of Hon. Eli B. Bean, marked "1748" was carried in the Indian Wars by Richard Peary, one of the family from which Lieut. Robert Peary, the Arctic explorer, has descended. The son of Richard settled in Brownfield.

History of Denmark.

LAND TITLES AND SETTLEMENT.

The town of Denmark is formed of various grants, about two-thirds of its area being taken from the town of Brownfield by the acts reconstructing that town and incorporating this town and Hiram. Many of the land titles issued to settlers in the section thus acquired (the western part) were from Henry Y. B. Osgood, grandson of Captain Brown, the grantee. Pleasant Mountain Gore, containing about 9000 acres, was granted by the General Court of Massachusetts to Fryeburg Academy and forms the eastern portion of the town. In a description of a survey of this tract, 2000 acres were reserved for Asahel Foster, the same being a grant to him from the General Court; 648 acres were surveyed to Gideon Lowell, 200 acres to David Porter, 300 acres to Icabod Warren, and 590 acres to the trustees of Fryeburg Academy. This, it seems, comprised only a portion of The Gore.

Settlement of Denmark.

Note—The following is taken from a note book of the late Joseph Bennett, Esq., who came to Denmark from Sanford in 1825. Mr. Bennett passed most of his years in town in active business as a merchant, was for 17 years postmaster, held various offices of trust, was justice of the peace, and took great interest in matters of local history, Much of the data he had gathered was unwritten and is now unknown. He died January 21, 1901, aged 81 years 10 months.

The first settler in the town of Denmark was Daniel Boston, a native of Sanford, who began clearing land and built a log house in 1775 between the most western of "Boston Hills" and Saco river, near a small pond which took his name. Here he resided several years. His only thoroughfare was the Saco, which was traveled by boat or sled, varying with the season. He soon found the land too frosty to raise corn and removed to the Hiram Hills.

The next settler was Jedediah Long from Berwick. He cleared a farm at West Denmark about 1780 and was there when a great freshet on the Saco river carried off his log house.

Soon after 1780 Ichabod Warren of Berwick settled on what was later known as the Amos Poor farm on the north side of Pleasant pond. Mr. Warren's son, Lieutenant Ichabod, lived here until his death in 1820, having a large family. Isaiah Warren of Fryeburg was his oldest son.

About 1786 Isaac Berry from Middleton, Mass., began clearing the farm now owned by Hadley Jack in the eastern part of the town. One Mr. Stiles settled the E. P. Ingalls farm adjoining about this time. Tyler Porter made a clearing and built a house on the west side of Berry hill not far east of the Saunders farm, cleared up by Jonathan Saunders of Billerica, Mass., about 1790. Between 1787 and 1794 Ephraim Jewett came to the settlement, cleared a farm at what is now "Head's Corner." Mr. Jewett was a native of Ipswich, Mass., who had settled in Bridgton a few years before removing here. His four sons settled on farms given them off the home farm. Francis McKusick married his oldest daughter and settled on the farm now owned by Chadbourne Rand.

Mr. Elias Berry was one of the most prominent settlers of Denmark. He was born in Middleton, Mass., August 23, 1767. His wife was Jane Stiles of Andover, Mass., where he began life. On February 11, 1794, he started from Andover with his wife and three children on an ox-sled. Eight days later he reached Denmark and made his home on Berry Hill adjoining his father, Isaac's, farm.

Cyrus Ingalls came to town about 1792 and built the first mill in town on Moose Brook. Mr. Ingalls was chosen a delegate to the Constitutional Convention held in Portland in 1819 to form a state constitution, and was the first representative to the Maine Legislature. He was the first justice of the peace and held town office nearly all his days. The youngest of his fourteen children was Brigadier-General Rufus Ingalls, born at the old homestead at Denmark Corner in 1820. He entered West Point Military Academy in 1839 and graduated July 1, 1843. He filled various offices in the army and served through the Mexican and Civil War, being several times promoted for valiant conduct. In 1862 he was made a brigadier-general of volunteers. The old home is now the home of Augustus Ingalls, postmaster and millman, and a nephew of General Ingalls.

Thomas Symards, a native of Danvers, Mass., came to Denmark from Bridgton in 1794 and settled in the east part of the town. His wife was Rhoda Knapp, who was the mother of a numerous family.

Bradbury Richardson, a native of Lebanon, Maine, came before 1800. At his death in 1826, he left a family of eleven children, nearly all adults.

Thomas Pingree of Henniker, N. H., cleared up a farm and settled on the South Road. He made a clearing in 1800 and the following year built a house. In March, 1802, he moved in his family. Mr. Pingree was a native of Rowley, Mass. His wife was Phoebe Alexander of Henniker, N. H. He cultivated an extensive farm which was enclosed by about a thousand rods of wall, nearly all "double." When he died in 1848 his fourteen children were all married and had issue. His brother, Parson Pingree, came in 1805 and located on a farm one mile east of the mills. His son, Jasper, was the father of the late Governor Hazen Pingree of Michigan.

From 1800 to 1810 there was a large influx of settlers. Benjamin Harnden and his brother James, Joseph Harden and Ebenezer, cousins of Benjamin, all came from Wilmington, Mass., and settled in the northwest part of the town. Joshua Ames, John Howe of Henniker, N. H., settled in the west part of the town; Jacob Frost and Dr. Richardson of Wilmington came to the east part. Daniel Lowell, a native of Cornish, settled here before 1800 in the eastern part. Henry Berry, son of Isaac Berry, settled in the eastern part of the town about 1796. Dr. Joseph Benton came soon after 1800. [See physicians.]

John Boston and Deacon Stephen Peary, natives of Sanford, located on the South Road about 1801. Sampson Whiting, born in Tewksbury, Mass., in 1765, married Betsy Upton of Wilmington, and came here about 1801, taking up a farm on the shores of Beaver Pond. He was a Revolutionary patriot.

Joseph Walker, born in Fryeburg, 1774, moved into town and began a settlement in the east part, in the Lowell district, about 1799. He removed to Westbrook about 1814. Joseph, his son, born in Denmark, became a prominent business man of Portland. Dean Osgood, born in Conway, N. H., in 1769, came to East Denmark before 1800.

William Davis, born in Westmoreland, N. H., in 1782, married Clarissa Carlton, and cleared a farm east of Denmark Corner, adjoining that of Parson Pingree. William Emerson came from Dover, N. H., about 1800 to the east part of the town. Thomas (?) Veasie settled in the eastern part of the town before 1800 on the farm afterwards owned by Benjamin B. Frost. Beniah Walker of Fryeburg married his daughter and cleared the place occupied by Moses E. Wentworth. Mr. Walker later removed to the western part of the town.

John Kenison and his sons, John Jr., and David, came from Eaton, N. H., about 1811 and settled near Pleasant mountain. John, Sr., it is said was the father of 31 children by two wives. John Douglass was an early settler on the north side of Pleasant mountain in that part of Denmark which was set off to Bridgton about 1840. He was a soldier of the Revolution, born 1759, and died in 1851.

John Deering of Saco settled in the Lowell district about 1806. Benjamin Lord from York settled on the South Road before 1800. Samuel Thomas of Standish moved to this town about 1809, settling in the eastern part on a farm cleared by Jona. Barker about 1806. Theodore Linscott moved to the South Road from Sanford about 1809-10.

Gideon Hatch of Sanford came to the south part of of the town a little after 1800. Joseph and Samuel Trumbull of Concord, N. H., came in about 1806. Jonas Alexander came before 1820 and lived with his son-in-law, John Hatch, where he died in 1826, a very old man.

Samuel Travis and wife, Judith (Turnbull) came to the Ames district in the western part of the town about 1810. James Head of Pembrook, N. H., came to "Head's Corner" prior to 1800. He married Mary Barker of Andover, Mass.

Obediah True, a Revolutionary soldier, moved into Denmark in 1813-14, after serving also in the War of 1812.

John P. Smith came to Denmark from Cornish about 1812 and cleared a farm at "Jordan's Corner." He became a prominent teacher and lumberman and a leading citizen.

The warrant calling the first town meeting was issued by Joseph Howard, and directed to Cyrus Ingalls, Esq. The meeting was called to assemble March 23d at the school house near Cyrus Ingalls, at one o'clock in the afternoon.

At the state election held April 6 following, forty-nine votes were cast, Hon. James Sullivan receiving 47 and Gov-

On this day the remaining town officers were chosen, and appropriations for town uses made. $1000 was voted for roads, to be worked out at $1 a day for labor. $300 was raised for schools. $100 for defraying town charges.

CHURCHES OF DENMARK.

The first minister who settled in Denmark was Elder Tristram Jordan from Thomaston, about 1804. He was ordained pastor of the Baptist church then formed here and remained in full care of the same until his death in 1827. He was succeeded by his son, Rev. Larkin L. Jordan who served as minister to this church for more than half a century and solemnized more marriages in town than any other man. He died Jan. 15, 1886. No services have since been held by the Baptists.

A Free Baptist Church was also formed early in the century and was for many years under the care of Rev. Joshua B. O. Colby, a native of Denmark. Services were held in the school houses until the erection of the Congregational church in 1834, which was then occupied by the Free Baptists for some time. This society is now extinct.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

A church of this denomination was organized July 5, 1829, at the home of William Davis near the Corner. Rev. Chas. Soule became the first pastor. He was dismissed Jan. 16, 1833. In the summer of 1834, the house of worship was erected by Joshua Osgood and presented to the society. The following shows the pastors and acting pastors who have been settled over the charge: Rev. James Gooch, from Dec. 1834 to May, 1839; Rev. David Gerry settled at Brownfield, supplied at this church from Dec. 1839 to 1851, and part of the time later uutil his death in 1856; Rev. Cyril Pearl, for one year beginning April, 1858; Rev. Amasa Loring from 1859 to 1863; Rev. Benj. F. Manwell, summer of 1866; A. S. Hudson and Edw. S. Huntress each supplied two months during the summer of 1867; Marquis L. Gordon, two months, 1869; Edwin S. Tingley was pastor of this church and at Brownfield from Aug. 1870 to June 1872; Trueman S. Perry remained two years, from July, 1872 to Aug, 1874; several supplies including Foster R. Wait, J. W. Brownville, Wm. G. Mann, Wm. B. Hague, M. W. Adams and others were employed until 1884, when Rev. E. S. Jordan of Brownfield was secured. Wm. B. Hague served the church again in 1886, followed by Rev. C. W. Luck and student supplies during the summer months until 1895. From Nov. 17 of that year, until Sept. 30, 1902, Rev. Chas. F. Sargent was pastor. Rev. Willard H. Palmer came here in 1903, and was ordained pastor in October of that year and remained until Aug. 31, 1906. Present pastor Rev. A. C. Boyd.

The church edifice was enlarged, remodeled and greatly improved in 1878, at a cost of about $1500. The church now numbers seventy members.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

A Methodist class was formed in Denmark early in the last century, many of the members residing at East Denmark. Services were held in the Congregational church after its erection at Denmark Corner, until the meeting house at East Denmark was erected by this society about thirty-five years ago. In 1860, this church was supplied in connection with Bridgton under Rev. G. F. Cobb, pastor. The following year it was connected with Brownfield with J. Stone, pastor. Since that time it has generally been connected with Bridgton, the appointments to which charge from 1865 to 1903 were Revs. G. W. Ballou, G. F. Cobb, (1866-68), M. B. Cummings, F. Grovenor, Noah Hobert, R. Vibian, C. W. Bradlee, O. M. Cousins, F. Grovenor, A. R. Sylvester, Parker Jaques, C. S. Cummings, C. F. Parsons, J. H. Trask (1890), A. E. Parlin (1891-93), W. P. Merrill, (1894), J. H. Roberts (1895), D. B. Holt (1896-1900), and C. C. Whidden, (1901-03). Rev. Geo. Palmer, 1904, was the last pastor who has served this church. A fund of $200 was bequeathed to this society by the late Zebina G. Whitney.

UNIVERSALIST PARISH.

Prior to the year 1840, a neat church edifice was erected by the Universalists of the town. The lot was presented by Samuel Gibson, the same to remain the property of the parish so long as it should be occupied by them. Rev. T. J. Tenney was an early, perhaps the earliest preacher of this society. Many other ministers of this denomination ministered to the charge, including Rev. S. R. H. Biggs, Rev. O. F. Alvord and Rev. Mr. Philbrook of Bridgton. No regular services have been held for several years and the meeting house was sold to the local Grange in 1903, for a place of meeting.

DENMARK SCHOOLS.

After the organization of Denmark the sum of $300 was raised for school purposes and in June Elias Berry, Joshua Ames and Ichabod Warren, Jr., were chosen a committee to district the town for schools. Up to this time there were no schoolhouses in town, but on August 31 a move was made for the erection of such a house in the middle of the town. Elias Berry, Cyrus Ingalls and Joshua Ames were chosen a committee to build the same, and $210 was raised to defray the expenses of construction.

In 1825 the population of Denmark had reached 800, of which number 254 were children attending school. These were divided among twelve school districts giving an average attendance of twenty or twenty-one. Many of the schools numbered much more than this, reaching as high as sixty, or even seventy-five during the years intervening between this date and 1875. A part of the fund established from the sale of the school lots was received by Denmark from which considerable benefit has been derived. The amount is not large, the interest for 1905 being $32.80, but even this amount has aggregated during the term of years it has been running an amount that the taxpayers would not like to see added to their other assessments.

The present village schoolhouse was erected in 1879. The schools of this town were long under the care of the late C. O. Pendexter to whom is due much of the credit for establishing the free high school, and for the general excellence of the several ungraded schools. Several school districts were abolished in 1895 and the new school building erected at West Denmark. Eight schools are generally maintained now with an average attendance of about 85 scholars.

The free high school was established in 1893 by the appropriation of $200 to use with a similar amount received from the state for that purpose. With the exception of one year this was regularly maintained until the present school year. Charles T. Stone was principal for two years beginning with the school year of 1895. Succeeding principals have been Fred G. Kneeland, one year; Albert C. Eames of Bethel, two years; Percy Giles, one year; Perley Plant, one year; F. H. Sanborn, two years (an earlier teacher) and Thomas Knowles of New Portland, one year. This was held in the village schoolhouse, which is a neat, commodious building.

MILLS AND MANUFACTURING.

The earliest mills in Denmark were built before 1800 by Cyrus Ingalls, Sr. They occupied the upper privilege on Moose brook at Denmark Corner and consisted of an up-and-down saw for long lumber, a set of stones for grinding corn, and probably a shingle machine. The mills came into the hands of Cyrus Ingalls, Jr., and later were operated by Barnabas Brackett and Sewall Fly. William Bean took the mills and put in a board machine while E. Sanborn run the stave machine and grist mill. At the opening of the war these men owned undivided halves in the property. In 1872 it was sold to the Pepperell Manufacturing Company of Biddeford and is now owned by the Saco Water Power Co.

In 1872 the old wood dam and flume were taken out and a strong stone dam put in at an expense of $2750. Bean sold his business in 1883, to Augustine Ingalls, who sold 10 years later to Fred Sanborn. Mr. Sanborn also succeeded to the business of his father, E. Sanborn, and carried on the entire plant until the fall of 1905, when he removed all his machinery and fixtures to a mill on the same stream below.

On the second site on Moose brook Cyrus Ingalls, Jr.,

built a saw mill in 1852 where he sawed boards, staves and shingles. In 1867 his son, A. Ingalls, bought the property but the mill burned October 21 of the following year. It was rebuilt during the winter and stave and shingle machinery was installed. Mr. Ingalls made corn boxes here for twenty-five years. He now operates it as a planing mill.

On the opposite side of the stream a mill was built by John W. Gilmore, whose deed to the right was issued in 1840. He sold to Jos. B. Watson. The mill was burned at the same time as the above but was soon rebuilt as a planing mill and for cabinet and casket work. In 1875 the business was sold to Potter & Ordway and removed to Cornish. After Potter's decease Mr. Ordway sold the mill to Isaac H. Berry, the present owner. Mr. Berry also operates another mill located some 50 feet away by means of an endless wire belt.

On the lower site Leonard A. Berry built a mill about 1862. This he operated for the manufacture of oak staves and shook, mackerel kits and salt boxes, bed slats, clothes pins and other goods. This was owned by Jos. Bennett at one time during which the business was carried on under Eliphlet McKeen, supt. It was sold to A. C. Drury, in 1871, and soon after to the Pepperell Mfg. Co. Stave, shingle and spool stock sawing has since been carried on by L. A. Bradbury and Ahbin F. Bradbury, brothers. The latter sold to Fred Sanborn in 1903. Mr. Sanborn has repaired the mills and removed hither his machinery from the upper mill.

Berry's mill on the canal was built by Leonard A. Berry. This was sold by George W. Gray to the present owner, I. H.

Berry, about 1900.

The first mill on the site at West Denmark, sometimes called "Nig Corner," was erected by James Harnden. This was later burned, and rebuilt by Robert Harriman. Joseph Holt was the next owner. He rebuilt the mill, and together with his sons, operated here until about 1890, when he sold to William H. Haseltine. The present operator is Guy Haseltine who turns out ax-handles, staves, dowels and spool stock.

"Perley's mill" was built about 1870 by John F. Perley and Wallace W. Berry for the manufacture of shook principally. The water wheel has recently been removed so the mill is not in condition for operating.

A large corn packing factory was erected at Denmark Corner in 1881 by Burnham & Morrill Co. This shop has been open every year since it was established and has provided an opportunity for the farmers of the town and vicinity to raise large areas of corn for its use. George T. Dealy was superintendent of this shop from 1881 until 1903 when he was succeeded by W. F. Greeley, now in charge.

The corn packing shop near East Fryeburg is located in this town. This was erected by Charles and William Warren and H. D. Harnden about 1893 and operated under the name of Warren Brothers and others until sold to H. C. Baxter & Brother ten years later. It is now operated as one of the Snow Flake Canning Co.'s plants with G. T. Cook, foreman. It has a capacity of 300,000 cans annually, or 25,000 daily. 125 acres of corn are required.

MILITARY ACCOUNT.

Many who had fought in the American Revolutionary forces later came to this region and a few took up lots here. Of this number was Obediah True. He enlisted after the battle of Bunker Hill at the age of nineteen; served under General Wayne at Stony Point and under Gates at the capture of Burgoyne's army. He was later taken prisoner by a British cruiser and carried to England where he was confined in Dartmoor Prison until the close of the war. He also enlisted in the War of 1812, and served to the close of hostilities.

During the War of 1812-14, a company of men was drafted during the latter year to go to the defense of Portland, together with other troops from the surrounding towns. The company from Denmark was under the command of Capt. Stephen Berry; Lieut. Wm. Davis and Aaron Ingalls, ensign. Stephen Peary and Jacob Frost were musicians; Wm. Pingree, Daniel Hill, Daniel Howe and Geo. Murphy, sergeants; and Jas. Warren, David Porter, John Ames and Moses Peary, corporals. There were fifty-nine privates in the company. This company proceeded to Portland in September, but were not long detained. Dr. Joseph Benton served as enlisting officer during the war for which he was granted a pension.

During the rebellion this was one of the few towns of the State that paid all costs of the war during the period of its continuance. At its close there was no debt, and the amount later reimbursed by the State was invested in a town farm on Patrick's Hill, bought in Sept. 1865.

PROFESSIONAL MEN.

PHYSICIANS.

The earliest physician in Denmark was Dr. Joseph Benton, who came here from Fryeburg soon after 1800, and remained for over a quarter of a century. Dr. Benton was a native of Westmoreland, Conn., but practiced his profession in Fryeburg several years before removing to this place. From here he removed to Baldwin, near Hiram line, where he died in 1838. He was an able physician and a leading citizen.

Dr. L. P. Sawyer who died in town 42 or 43 years ago last October, came here around 1830. He was postmaster one or more terms, keeping the office in a building which stood opposite A. H. Jones' residence. Dr. J. L. Farrington succeeded Dr. Sawyer; he died a few years later of consumption. Dr. Joseph B. Gray studied with Dr. Farrington, whom he succeeded. Dr. Chas. Burnham removed from here to Jefferson, N. H., in 1874. Dr. S. T. Brown came here during the autumn of 1875 from Sebago. He served during the Civil War as an army physician; died in Denmark Feb. 3, 1904. Dr. N. P. Butler removed to Washington, D. C., in April, 1903, after practicing his profession in town less than two years. Dr. D. LeBaron Shaw came from Portland April 12, 1904, and remained in practice here until Aug. 4, 1906, when he returned to the city. There is no resident physician now in Denmark.

There have been no resident lawyers in Denmark for many years. Chas. E. Holt, a native of this town, removed to Norway in 1872, after a short practice here. S. Granville Davis, a grandson of Wm. Davis, one of the leading men of the early town, is a lawyer by profession and has done some law business in town. He is now a clerk in the Treasury department at Washington, but retains his summer residence at the old home.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Crystal Spring Grange, P. of H., No. 150, was first organized July 9, 1875, S. G. Davis, master. After a short time the organization lapsed, and until Dec. 12. 1901, no meetings were held. On the latter date the order was re-organized, since which time much interest has been shown in its progress. From a membership of 27 at the time of re-organizing, it has increased to 61, the present membership. Wm. Allen was chosen Master for 1902, in which position he has been succeeded by H. W. Evans, Elmer Berry and Edwin S. Head. The old Universalist church was purchased in 1903, and has been fitted up for the accommodation of the Grange. Meetings are held every other Saturday night. The leading officers for the present year are Bailey Trumbull, Master; Harry Thomes, Over.; Chas. Pingree, Lec.; Perley McKusick, St'd; Lizzie Bradbury, Chap.; Geo. W. Moulton, Treas. and Fred Colby, Sec.

Denmark Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 50, was instituted in Feb. 1877. The Rebecca lodge was organized in 1882. Odd Fellows Hall was erected in 1884.

Denmark Post Office was established Jan. 5, 1821, with Samuel Gibson, postmaster.

History of Hiram.

EARLY SETTLEMENT AND PIONEERS.

The town of Hiram is comprised of various grants and lots of land made to settlers who were generally veterans of the French and Indian Wars or of the Revolution. In 1774, Lieut. Benj. Ingalls of Andover, Mass., Daniel Foster (a brother-in-law), Abiel Messer, John Curtis and Eben. Herrick came to the Great Falls and laid out as many lots on the west side of the river. The bounds of Lieut. Ingalls lot were as follows," Begining (at) a maple Tree on ye River Bank against Bryant's Pond So Called, Running West 160 Rods, then Running South 80 Rods, then Running East to Saco River." This tract of land extended from the brook above Hiram Falls to a point above the mouth of Hancock brook and included the plot where Hiram Bridge village now stands. Lieut. Ingalls, to whom is accorded the honor of having been the earliest settler in the town 1774, entered the British Army while yet a boy and was captured at Louisburg in 1745, at the age of seventeen. In 1761, he was commissioned a lieutenant. In October, 1785, the great freshet swept away his house, barn and blacksmith shop and he soon removed to Flintstown (Baldwin), where he settled near "Ingalls Pond."

Daniel Foster was the second settler in Hiram, locating not far from the bend in the Saco. His death in 1780, was the first in town.

Two grants of land in this section were made to Timothy Cutler. The "Upper Grant" is included mostly within the present bounds of Brownfield; the "Lower Grant," made in 1788, consisted in part of a portion of Mount Cutler which is named in his honor. His house was located where Geo. W. Osgood has since lived. He was the first postmaster in Hiram, appointed April 1, 1801.

In 1790, General Peleg Wadsworth, a native of Duxbridge, Mass., and a Revolutionary patriot, purchased a tract of land in the plantation consisting of 7,800 acres, on which he cleared an extensive and valuable farm, where in 1792, it is stated, he raised 1,000 bushels of corn on burnt land. In 1795, he built a house and settled his son, Chas. L. Wadsworth, on the estate. In 1800, General Wadsworth built for himself a country mansion here, the most stately and elegant ever built in town, to which he moved in 1807. This house is still standing, having remained in the posession of the family for over a century. It is now a historical treasure house. Gen. Wadsworth was a man of liberal education, wealth and public spirit, and was regarded as the patriarch of the town. His Portland residence is now the famous Wadsworth-Longfellow house, the birth place of his grandson, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Title to the northeastern part of the town seems to have been derived from a deed made in 1666, to Maj. Wm. Phillips of Saco, whereby Capt. Sunday, the Indian Sagamore, conveyed to him "three rocks of hills" supposed to be rich in silver ore. In 1807, 1,500 acres in this vicinity were taxed to the heirs of Phillips.

James Eastman was one of the earliest to locate in Hiram. He was a soldier of the French and Indian Wars and served in the Revolution. He lived near the home of Capt. Artemas Richardson, another early settler and is buried on the hill side near by. John Watson, said to have come from England, served in the Revolution, and came to Hiram in 1778. His son John was the first male child born in town. Thomas, another son, was an early justice of the peace. The early home was located on the bank of the Saco, but was washed away in the freshet of 1785. Mr. Watson then built where Walter F. Watson has resided since. Daniel Boston came early to Denmark. In June, 1783, he removed to Hiram Hills, on the west side of the Saco, to the farm where Llewellyn A. Wadsworth now resides. His first house stood a little below the site of Mr. Wadsworth's residence. In 1815, the old house was burned and the present residence erected by Mr. Boston and his son, Loami. To the north a few rods another son, Royal, settled. Winthrop, the oldest son, settled in this part of the town; Benjamin, the youngest, located on the "Boston Road."

John Burbank came from Kennebunk in 1778; was an early school master in Hiram; a soldier of the Revolution; settled on the farm since owned by Nathan Kimball. His son Israel was appointed postmaster in 1803. Israel was in the war of 1812. Asa, a brother to Israel was commissioned a lieutenant Sept. 15, 1813. John, another brother, was a plantation assessor in 1805. John Clemons came from Danvers, Mass., in 1879, first locating near Island bridge in Brownfield. The following year he removed to Hiram and built a cabin near the site of Col. Aldrick Clemons house. While hunting Mr. Clemons discovered the large pond which took his name. Being pleased with the locality he removed his family thither and spent the rest of his days there. During the first seven years while the family were living at the pond, Mrs. Clemons saw the face of but one of her sex, that of the dusky squaw of Tom Heagon, the Indian hunter. In 1880, more than 10% of the population of Hiram were descended from this family or connected by marriage. Their children were Hannah, m. Lemuel Howard; John, settled in a cabin between Capt. Sam. Wadsworth's and the mill brook, in 1790; Jonathan, settled in town; Ruth, m. Capt. Chas. L. Wadsworth and had eleven children; Eli P. settled in Hiram; and Jamar and Delilah, who died young.

John Bucknell came from Fryeburg with his son Simeon, in 1785. Simeon and his son Andrew, were captains of the militia. Lemuel Howard, son of Hon. Jas. Howard, came from Brownfield in 1785, m. Hannah Clemons, as above, and settled on the Wm. Cotton place. His son John, was an officer in the War of 1812. John Ayer was living in Hiram as early as 1787. He built the first grist mill in town on the brook just above the old "red mill." He and Capt. Chas. Wadsworth built the first bridge across the Saco in Hiram, about 1805. John McLucas came in 1887, and settled opposite Henry B. Fly's lane. He was a soldier of the Revolution, and a man of powerful physique. Wm.

Gray came from Hollis in 1793, and settled below the falls. He was a blacksmith, as was his son, who served in the War of 1812.

James Fly, a veteran of the French and Indian wars settled on the Marshall Warren farm in 1794. He also served in the Revolution. Capt. Thos. Spring settled in 1794, where Marshall Spring has since lived. He was with Montgomery at the assault on Quebec; through the Revolutionary war; with Arnold on the Plains of Abraham; and with Washington in the battle of White Plains. He was the first to open a public house in Hiram, his old sign-board bearing the date "1796." John Pierce, a descendent of the distinguished family of Baldwin, came in 1794; Wm. Storer, a Revolutionary patriot, came the following year. Daniel E. Cross, Wm. Brown, Daniel Hickey, who with Genl. Wadsworth, were taken prisoners at Bagadyce in 1781, and Capt. John Lane, who was one of three brothers of Buxton to command as many companies in 1777, were all veterans of the struggle for independence before coming to this town. Wm. Brown served also in the war of 1812, as did also Jas. Dyer and Marshall Lewis, the latter of whom was killed at the battle of Oswego.

Jonathan K. Lowell, a Revolutionary soldier, came from Baldwin at an early date. Wm. Cotton came from Cornish as early as 1799, and settled where his son, Lemuel, afterward lived. He served in the war of 1812. Asa Osgood, a Revolutionary soldier, early made his home on the farm since owned by Royal Clark, and was the head of the family of this name in town. John and David Tyler came to "Tyler Hill" before 1800, but did not long remain. They were succeeded by Josiah Mabry of Windham, who had first settled near Hancock pond.

Capt. Edmund Skillings came to Hiram before 1800, and lived below John Spring's. Philip Corey settled on the Enoch Treadwell place at South Hiram about the same time. Moses and Aaron Gould lived on the Harrison Scribner farm in 1800. James Gilmore, Dea. Edward Richardson, Dea. Ephraim Kimball and Col. John Warren were later arrivals who were prominent men in the early town; Col. Warren was an able officer in the Revolution and a leading citizen. He had thirteen children, one of whom Genl. William was a commander of volunteer militia in 1861.

These are the names of many of the pioneers of Hiram. Others whose names we have not recorded were among the settlers and were more or less prominent, but we have tried to take up the principal families and the ancestors of many of the present families. For many of these facts and dates we are indepbted to Mr. Ridlon's excellent production, *"Saco Valley Settlements and Families."

THE TOWN ORGANIZED.

We have been unable to find the records of the "Plantation of Hiram" and are unable to say at what time the settlements first organized for local government. The organization was in effect in 1805, for that year we learn that John Burbank was one of the board of assessors; it is probable that some form of government was instituted before the close of the preceeding century.

The township was incorporated a District on Feb. 27, 1807, which gave its people most of the privileges of towns. In 1814, Hiram became a full fledged town. At this time the selectmen were Peleg Wadsworth, John Warren and Alpheus Spring; Benj. Bucknell was town clerk. The following year Asa Burbank was the third selectman, in place of Mr. Spring; and Peleg Wadsworth treasurer. Town meetings were then held in the Bucknell school house. The town house was first occupied in 1819, during the month of July. A vote taken at this time on the question of the separation of the District of Maine from the Commonwealth showed 53 in favor of, and but five against the measure.

In 1859, Samuel Ridlon, Jr., and others in the vicinity presented a petition to be set off to the town of Porter.

CHURCHES IN HIRAM.

The earliest preacher to labor among the settlers of Hiram, so far as records show, was John Ayer an early mill owner. Other exhorters of various beliefs visited the settlement. A Calvanist Baptist church was formed in the early part of the century past, and a Methodist Class about the same time at South Hiram. The early Baptist preachers were Elders Timothy Remick of Cornish, and John Chadbourn who moved into Hiram around 1830. The Methodist services at South Hiram were generally connected with the work at Porter, services being held in the Tripp school house.

A Free-Will Baptist church was gathered at East Hiram in 1825, and the old Union meeting house which stood above the "corners" was built about 1834, by the combined efforts of the Free Baptists and Methodists. Such solid ministers as Samuel Hart, John Pinkham, Benj. Manson, Chas. O. Libby, Aaron Ayer and Charles Bean here ministered to the spiritual life of this people.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH—EAST HIRAM.

The first Methodist class was formed in Hiram about 1810, when twenty-two members united in sustaining regular meetings. Little is known of their successes and failures from that date until 1832, when the work was greatly strengthened by the efforts of early circuit riders including Elders Strout, Dike and Linscott. This society had a remarkable growth for many years then rapidly declined. Social meetings were continued however, and in May, 1874, Hiram was again united with Baldwin, which connection has continued until the present time.

A parsonage was erected at Hiram about 1835, but this was later sold and the proceeds used in buying the parsonage at West Baldwin. The old Union house was kept in repair by the Methodist after the decline of the Free Baptist society, and was occupied for worship until the completion of the present fine church home in the fall of 1885. This was made possible by a generous gift from Freeman Hatch of Cornish, a former prominent member of this society. The following is a list of pastors appointed to this charge (with Baldwin), since 1880: Revs. Geo. C. Andrews, 1880-81-82; Hezekiah Chase, 1883; Geo. W. Barber, 1884-86; D. Pratt, Jr., 1887-88; Jas. Nixon, 1889; C. A. Ratcliffe, 1890-91; W. H. Congdon, 1892-93; Insley A. Bean (with Cornish), 1894; R. S. Leard, 1895-97; C. H. Young, 1898; E. T. Barentzen, 1899; Rev. Mr. McAllister (supply), David Nelson, 1900-02; Jas. M. Potter, 1903-06.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

A Congregational church was organized in Hiram Oct. 26, 1826. Four years later Rev. Chas. Soule was installed the first regular pastor and served until Jan. 16, 1833. Rev. David Gerry was the next settled pastor; installed on Christmas day, 1839, he served this church and the Brownfield and Denmark churches faithfully and well for a period of seventeen years. Revs. Cyril Pearl, John Boynton, Ezra B. Pike, R. Henry Davis, Asher Anderson and J. Thompson each filled the pulpit for varying short periods prior to 1875. Mr. Leavitt went a missionary to Japan the latter year. Rev. Albert Cole, pastor of the Cornish church was acting pastor of this church from 1874, until his death Jan. 29, 1881. Rev. Zenas Crowell was his successor at both churches from 1881 until 1884. Rev. E. Morrow preached three months in 1884. Rev. Edw. P. Eastman was pastor from May 1885 to Jan. 8, 1887, followed by student supplies until Rev. David Martyn came to the church in 1890. He served three years. Geo. P. Merritt was acting pastor during the summer of 1894, and for one year following July, 1, 1895. He was followed by Willis P. Hume, who remained until Sept. 4, 1898. In January, following Rev. Jos. G. W. Herold began his services as missionary to this church and at Sebago. He remained until July, 1901. Rev. Alexander J. Cameron served this church with the church at Brownfield from May, 1902 to April 30, 1903; he was succeeded in this church by W. H. Palmer, who was acting pastor of this church and at Denmark until Aug. 31, 1906. Present pastor Rev. A. C. Boyd. The Congregational meeting house was dedicated in August, 1872. There are now about 40 members.

UNIVERSALIST SOCIETY.

Members of this denomination organized a church society as early as fifty years ago and had occasional preaching for some years, but no meeting house was had until the present building was erected and presented to the society in 1871, by Mrs. Spring. The following year a new organization was formed and a Sunday school established. The house was dedicated in June, that year. Rev. I. J. Mead, now the assistant editor of the Leader, became pastor in 1873. Among later pastors and preachers were Revs. F. A. Barton, Otis Alvord and Ira D. Morrison. Rev. H. H. Hoyt became pastor in 1896, remaining three years when he removed to Portland, Oregon. After three years in the west he returned to this church, together with the churches at Brownfield and at North Fryeburg, and remained until lately chosen state superintendent of the Maine Universalist Society. He resides at East Hiram.

SCHOOL ITEMS.

We have gathered but little data on the early schools of Hiram as the earliest records of the plantation and towns transactions have not been found. Town meetings in 1815, were held in the "Bucknell school house." The following year a vote was taken to see what sum the town would raise to help district Number One build a school house, presumably to be used for town purposes as well. The sum of $100 was voted in 1815, and twice that amount in 1816, for the maintainence of town schools. The latter year Peleg Wadsworth, A. Spinney and John Pierce were chosen a committee "to superintend the business of schools and also to locate and divide the same." In 1821, there were eight districts in town, of which the following were chosen to act as "School Agents" for the year: John Bucknell, District No. 1; Ephraim Kimball, No. 2; C. L. Wadsworth, No. 3; William Cotton, No. 4; Henry W. Barnes, No. 5; Humphrey A. Chadbourne, No. 6; John Warren, No. 7; Wm. Stanley, No. 8. In 1825, this number had increased to eleven districts which had a combined attendence of 283 scholars from a population of 800.

MILITARY ACCOUNT.

Most of the pioneers who located within the present bounds of Hiram before 1790, and many who came at a later date, had seen service in the French and Indian Wars or in the American Revolution. For the names of many of these we would refer our readers to the chapter on early settlers. Others there were who saw service in these conflicts who later settled here, and many who served in the company that marched to the defense of Portland in 1814.

The following is a list of the men who served on the quotas of Hiram in the late Civil War.

PHYSICIANS IN HIRAM.

Dr. Jere. Dow, located near the site of the present Grange Hall as early as 1840 (?), was the town physician until the beginning of the war in 1861. He was succeeded by Wm. H. Smith who came from Sebago to East Hiram about this time. He remained here for seventeen years when he removed to Cornish and died there in 1905. Dr. J. Louville Bennett succeeded Dr. Smith for seven or eight years, then then removed to Bridgton. The present physician, Dr.

Chas. E. Wilson, a graduate of Bowdoin Medical School, 1885, practiced at Mt. Kineo during the summer following the completion of his college work. In October he removed to East Hiram to succeed Dr. Bennett retiring, and has remained in successful practice covering a wide field. Others have located here for a few weeks or months, but have not become established.

No lawyers have remained in practice in Hiram. J. B. Pike, proprietor of the Wadsworth Mansion, is a member of the bar and does some local practice.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Hiram Grange, No. 152, P. of H. was organized at Young's Hall April 10, 1875, by Hiram Waterhouse of Poland. J. Everett Stuart was chosen the first master. The hall located between the Bridge and East village was erected during the summer and dedicated Dec. 23, that year. Mr. Stuart was re-elected. This order has continued in successful operation until the present time and the work accomplished has been a great benefit to the agricultural interests of the town. The following is a list of the men who have filled the Office of Master succeeding Mr. Stuart: Oliver Allen, 1877; A. K. P. Googins '78-80; Eli Clemons, '81; E. L. Allen, '82; Ephraim Wentworth, '83-4; Melville Gould, '85; E. Wentworth, '86-7; D. W. Pierce, '88; E. Wentworth, '89, Chas. Rankin, '90-1; Geo. R. Beane, '92; E. L. Allen, '93-7; Wm. H. Wakefield, '98; Oliver Allen, '99-1900; I. S. Lowell, present membership is 81. The leading officers chosen for '01-2; Melville Gould, '03-4; Ephraim Kimball, '05-6. The 1907, are Clifton Evans, Master; E. E. Weeman, Over.; Edith H. Lane, Lec.; N. P. Kimball, St'd.; E. L. Allen, Treas.; Herbert Moulton, Sec.

The Hiram Public Library was established by the appropriation of the sum of $50 by the town, in 1901. This amount is raised each year and a good selection of new books added. Mrs. Joseph Twitchell served as the first librarian, for two years it has been under the care of Mrs. Clarence F. Ward, near the bridge. There are now about 500 volumes representing a wide field of literature. The library is well patronized by the reading public.

Hiram Lodge, No. 39, K. of P. was instituted in Feb. 1883. The present Hall was erected in 1895, to replace that burned in Feb. preceeding.

Hiram Postoffice was established April 1, 1801; Timothy Cutler, P. M.: East Hiram postoffice, April 8, 1875; Roscoe G. Greene, P. M.: South Hiram postoffice, Sept. 1, 1879, John Durgin. P. M.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

The earliest mill in Hiram was a saw mill erected by John Ayer in a deep glen on the right side of the road leading to the Hiram Hills, not far above "The Bridge" village. This mill was driven by a great overshot wheel, and when the stream was at spring flood it afforded abundant power. The mill was built about 1785.

Wm. Stanley built a saw mill on the stream that issues from the Spectacle Ponds, in the south west part of the town, at an early day; it was close to the lower pond, near the road now leading from the chapel to the home of Daniel Gray, and was one of the first mills in town. An early mill was also operated by the Stanleys on the site now occupied by Geo. Milliken's mill. Wm. Stanley presumably erected the first mill. He was succeeded by his son, Isaac, and he by his sons, Samuel and George. The property then passed to Tobias Libby, by purchase; then to Randall Libby, who sold to Jas. R. Milliken in Nov. 1864. Upon his death in 1875, his son George, the present owner began operating the mills. Ten years later he rebuilt them, taking out the old grinding machinery. Another mill on this stream just below Mr. Milliken's was built by George Stanley, father of F. F. Stanley, who has done business here for many years. In 1880, and for many years this was used for threshing as well as sawing, The mill is yet operated by Mr. Stanley, but was sold to Allen Garner not long since. Mr. Garner has added a long lumber mill and the plant now produces all kinds of short and long lumber. In 1868 and for several years John Merrifield had a shingle mill near Hiram and Porter line on the brook leading into Stanley pond.

Gen. Peleg Wadsworth built a mill on "Shookham" brook about 1819. This stream was also used for driving down logs and was subsequently named Canal brook. Several mills have stood on this site, the last being owned by

W. W. Wadsworth, but is not now in operation. The General also had a grist mill on his farm before his death in 1829. About 1848 to 1864 Albion P. Burton had a saw and shingle mill on Canal brook about a mile above Wallace P. Wadsworth's mill.

Isaac Emery of Portland and Ephraim Sanborn of Denmark erected a large saw mill at the Great Falls, on Saco River, in 1874, the raising taking place on July 4. Here some twenty-five or thirty hands were employed until 1880, when the large boarding house was burned. The mill was swept away by freshet in 1896. A canal boat was fitted up as a steamer and plied between the mill and a landing near Boston Hills in Denmark, bringing eight cords of oak bolts at a load.

Nearly a century ago a Mr. Barker built a split stone dam across Hancock brook near Barker Pond, (which pond took his name) and erected a mill near by. At East Hiram, on this stream, as early as 1832, was a cabinet factory employing ten to twelve men and producing annually from 8,000 to 10,000 chairs, 400 to 600 bedsteads and large quantities of other products.

About 1876, Alex. P. Copp erected a steam mill near Col. A. M. Clemons' house. This was later removed to a lot near the Gen. Wadsworth farm. In 1805-06, Chas. E. Hill of Brownfield operated a steam mill near Clemons' Pond. Between 1860 and 1870, Capt. Samuel Wadsworth built and run a stave and shingle mill on his farm. In 1804, a steam saw mill was built to saw a million feet of pine from the farm. Between 1860 and 1870, Daniel W. Pierce had a stave mill near the Spring school house. About the same time N. W. Adams and Jos. D. Lord had a mill between the old Porter road and Ossipee river.

The mill now owned by Flint and Burnell at East Hiram was an early wool-carding and cloth dressing mill, run by Ephraim Kimball and Henry McGrath. Allen & Green later purchased the mill intending to manufacture "kits", but an unpromising market led them to change the plan; Greene then sold to Mr. Corson, and the mill was refitted for a carpenters shop. Flint & Burnell purchased the mill about 1870. N. R. Flint has since then carried on the manufacture of ax-helves, while E. C. Burnell, has operated an independent business in the saw mill and has also made clothes horses and operates a cider mill in its season.

The saw mill operated by the Hiram Lumber Co. was occupied by Mr. Elisha Woodman around the middle of the last century. He operated a lumber and grist mill, and installed a flour mill where the wheat then grown in this locality to quite an extent, was taken and prepared for bread. John Clark was a later owner. In Feb. 1872, he sold the mills to A. & P. B. Young who have continued in successful operation for over a third of a century. The old mills were burned not long after this transfer but were soon rebuilt larger and better, and the old up-and-down saw was succeeded by more modern machinery. The flour and grist mills were not reinstated. H. P. Young, son of the senior partner, has lately become connected with the business, and the present business name adopted. From forty to fifty men are employed in the mills and in preparing the lumber for the same. Large quantities of boxes have been made here. Spool strips, shingles and all kinds of long and short lumber are manufactured. Another mill on Hancock brook is located about a mile and a half above East Hiram. In 1880, this was carried on by P. Rankins as a stave and carding mill. G. H. Rankins has continued the stave business and does some sawing.

The Twitchell-Champlin Co's canning factory was built in 1879, for J. Winslow Jones by A. & P. B. Young. Mr. Jones became insolvent the first season and the business was operated by Messrs. Young for a period of ten years. They then assumed charge of the Brownfield factory and operated the two under the supervision of P. B. Young, for several years. The Twitchell-Champlin Co. bought this factory and began operations in 1897.

L. Cotton & Son are doing quite a business in the manufacture of ax-helves. Lemuel Cotton began this business in a small way when on his farm near the close of the Civil War. The annual output was then from 200 to 300 ax and hammer handles. In 1884, he removed to his present location near the railroad and supplied a large local trade. The entire output which has doubled since removing here, is now shipped to one concern. His son, C. C. Cotton, has been connected with the business for many years, but gives his attention to conducting the general store which is operated by the company. Eight men are employed in the handle factory except through the busy farming season. The output in 1905 amounted to 2,500 dozens.

The latest established commercial industry in Hiram is the new Creamery at The Bridge. The Hiram Creamery Association was organized in June, 1904. The factory was immediately erected and was opened for business in September, under the management of H. I. Mason. Business was begun with 150 patrons which number has now increased to 250. The first year's business amounted to $33,000; the following year showed quiet a material increase, while the year 1907, is most promising of excellent results. This association was formed of local business men of whom D. B. Cram, H. N. Burbank, R. L. Lowell, John Colby, E. P. Fessenden, Fred Ward and Frank Haley were the principal promoters. The capital stock is $10,000. Cream is collected from a wide extent of territory, thus offering dairy men a ready and profitable market for their product.

History of Porter.

PORTERFIELD PLANTATION.

The territory of Porterfield Plantation, from which the greater part of the Town of Porter and the western part of the Town of Brownfield were formed, was acquired by purchase from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The following is a copy of the deed conveying these lands, issued in Boston, under date of Sept. 24, 1793. It will best explain itself by being given in full.

"Know all men by these presents that we whose names are undersigned and seals affixed, appointed by the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, a committee with full power to sell and convey the unappropriated lands of the said Commonwealth lying within the counties of York, Cumberland and Lincoln, for and in consideration of the sum of five hundred and sixty-four pounds, lawful money, paid to us for the use of the said Commonwealth, by Jeremiah Hill of Biddeford, in the county of York, Esq., and his associates hereafter named, pursuant to the contract with them some years since, the receipt whereof we do hereby acknowledge, have given, granted, bargained, sold and conveyed, and by these presents do, in behalf of the said Commonwealth, give, grant, bargain, sell and convey to the said Jeremiah Hill and his associates, viz.: Aaron Porter of said Biddeford, physician, Thomas Cutts and Nathaniel Scammon, both of Pepperellboro; in said county of York, esquires, Seth Storer, of said Pepperellboro; merchant, and James Coffin of said Pepperellboro; yeoman, Caleb Emery of Sanford, in said county of York, esquire, Wm. Emery of said Sanford, and Nath'l Merritt of Fryeburg, in said county of York, yeoman, a township, being a track of land lying in the county of York aforesaid, now called Porterfield; as the same was surveyed by Samuel Titcomb in the month of November, A. D. 1789, containing about 18,600 acres, including ponds etc., lying between the rivers Saco and Great Ossipee, in the county of York, bounded as follows, viz.: beginning at a pitch pine tree standing on the line of New Hampshire and on the north side of said Ossipee river, thence running on said line north eight degrees east, nine miles one hundred and twenty rods to a beech tree, standing as the west corner of Brownfield, thence bounds by said Brownfield, north seventy-eight degrees east, five hundred and fifty-two rods to a pitch pine tree, thence south twenty-eight degrees east, seven hundred and sixty rods to a hemlock tree standing near the south-west side of a small stream called Shepard's river, being the northerly corner of Timothy Cutler's land, thence bounded by said Cutler's land, south sixty-two degrees west, nine hundred and fifty rods, thence south twenty-eight degrees east, two miles thence north sixty-two degrees east, nine hundred and fifty rods to said Brownfield line, thence running on said Brownfield line south twenty-eight degrees east, seventy rods to a pitch pine tree, thence south eighteen degrees west, nine hundred and eighty rods to a poplar tree, thence south seven degrees east, seven hundred rods to a maple tree standing by the north side of said Ossipee river, thence running up and by said Ossipee river until it intersects first mentioned bounds, excepting and reserving four lots of three hundred and twenty acres each for public uses, viz.: one for the first settled minister, one for the use of the ministry, one for the use of schools, and one for the future appropriation of the General Court, the said lots to average in goodness and situation with the other lands in the said township, and also excepting and reserving for the disposition of government one hundred acres of said land for each of the following settlers who settled thereon before the first day of January A. D. 1784, laid out or to be laid out, so as best to include such settlers' improvements and be least injurious to the adjoining lands, viz.: John Libby, Meshach Libby, Stephen Libby, and James Rankins, (the settlers deeds were dated June 16, 1792, and signed by the same committee as below) to have and to hold the afore granted premises to the said Jeremiah and his associates as tennants in common in the following proportions, viz.: to the said Jeremiah Hill two fifteenth parts, to the said Aaron Porter six fifteenth parts, to the said Thomas Cutts one fifteenth part, to the said Nath'l Scammon one fifteenth part, to the said Seth Storer one fifteenth part, to the said James Coffin one fifteenth part, to the said Caleb Emery one fifteenth part, to the said Wm. Emery one fifteenth part, to the said Nath'l Merrill one fifteenth part. To them and their several heirs and assigns respectively in the proportion aforesaid. And we the said Committee, in behalf of the Commonwealth aforesaid, do covenant and agree with the said Jeremiah Hill and his said associates, that the said Commonwealth shall warrant and defend the aforegranted premises, saving the exceptions and reservations aforesaid, to them, their heirs and assigns forever, in the proportions aforesaid, against the lawful claims and demands of all persons.

In testimony whereof the said committee have hereunto set their hands and seals this twenty-fourth day of September, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three.

Signed, sealed and delivered in presence of us,

Timothy Newell	Nath'l Wells, [L. S.]
Thomas Walcut	Leo Jarvis, [L. S.]
	John Reed, [L. S.]

The tract of land referred to in the above deed as Timothy Cutler's Grant was a block of 3800 acres lying north easterly of the described lands. This was included within the bounds of Porterfield Plantation, when organized in 1802, but by the Brownfield-Porter line as established in 1806, all but about 120 acres of this grant was annexed to Brownfield.

SETTLEMENT AND ORGANIZATION

By the foregoing deed we learn that four pioneers had prior to 1784, penetrated the forest and formed permanent settlements within the limits of the described tract. According to Moulton's History of Porter the first of these to form a settlement was Mesbach Libby, who came from Pittsfield, N. H., in 1781. He was soon followed by his father, John, and his brother, Stephen, also from his native town. The fourth name mentioned, that of James Rankins, is unknown to the oldest records, or to tradition, while there is good evidence to show that Michael Floyd had become an actual settler prior to Jan. 1, 1784, and was, therefore, the fourth settler. He soon after removed to Parsonsfield.

Mesbach Libby sold his lot in 1792 to David Moulton, and bought that settled by his brother, Stephen, where he remained until his death. Stephen then purchased a tract adjoining David Moulton's. The children of Mesbach Libby and his wife Deborah (Ely) were Sarah (married Gideon Mason); Mary (married William Hill); Mesbach, Jr.; Elsy (married Edward Hill); Elizabeth, who died in childhood, was born in 1781, the first child born of Euporean parentage within the limits of the town; and Eunice, who married Jacob Hind.

Mr. Libby later married Hannah Crosse, and died in 1829. John Libby and wife are said to have lived about 20 years after their settlement in Parsonsfield. Stephen Libby was thrice married and was the father of nineteen children. His second son, Daniel, was the first male child born in town. Olive, who married William Hodsdon, William T., and Gideon Libby were the last of this family to survive.

David Moulton had a family of six children. Daniel Knowles, one of the earliest settlers, was thrice married and had a family of ten sons and daughters. Simeon Libby, a brother to Mesbach and Stephen, was the father of thirteen children by his wife, Hannah (Knowles). Gideon Mason of Pittsfield, N. H., married the oldest daughter of Mesbach Libby, who was the mother of six children. John Mason, a brother to Gideon, married Tryphene Allard, who had eleven children. Henry Floyd and his wife, Betsy (Bickford) had a family of nine; William French and Kezia Libby, a family of five; John French and Sally Trefren, eight children; Charles Nutter and his wife, Olive, six children; and Joseph Pearl and Catherine Clark, ten children.

These were the families established here before the year 1800. They were mostly bound together by the ties of kinship and by their numerous descendants have a good representation in town. Daniel Knowles arrived here as early as 1793; Henry Floyd, 1794; and John and William French, who came from Farmington, N. H., as early as 1796. Joseph Pottle, who was the first captain of the plantation militia, and David Pottle, were also here as early as 1793.

The following men were settled in town as early as 1803, many of them considerably earlier: Josiah Bridges (at Porter village near the "Bridges Spring"); Benjamin Bridges (probably a brother); Josiah Bridges, Jr.; James Bridges, Jonathan Blazo, Samuel Brooks, Hezekiah Bickford, Jonathan Cook, Abraham Cook, Nathaniel Cook, Jacob French, John Fox (as early as 1801), Edward Fox, Elijah Fox, John Hayes (a weaver from Ireland); David Hodsdon, Isaac Knowles, Jonathan and John Libby, Jr., Mesbach Libby, Jr., Hanson and Tobias Libby, and their father, Isaac, Francis Mathews, Thomas Randall, the father of the poet; Samuel Richards, Samuel Richards, second, and John Thompson.

The following were settled here prior to the incorporation of the town in 1807: Job Bailey, James Coffin, the first justice of the peace, Samuel Hodsdon, William Stanley, Jos. and Elisha Stanley, John Stacy (as early as 1804), Eben Taylor, Henry Tibbetts and Richard Young.

Of these men Job Bailey, William Stanley, Richard Young, Jona. Blazo, Elijah Fox, John Hayes, Jona. and Mesbach Libby, Jr., Jos. Pottle, Thos. Randall and Samuel Richards, second, were not permanent settlers. Simeon Libby and Daniel and Isaac Knowles removed to New York state 1817. Some idea of the location of these settlers may be gained by referring to the chapter on schools.

The earliest plantation meeting was held July 12, 1802, at the home of William Broad in what is now Brownfield. Nathaniel Merrill, an original proprietor, was chosen moderator. A vote was then made "to raise twelve pounds for the plantation's use; to give the collector, John Merrill, two shillings per pound for collecting; to raise $200 in labor for repairing roads, etc.

Later meetings were held at the dwelling houses of Daniel Brooks, John Wentworth, Abraham Cook and Josiah Bridges, Jr.

At a meeting held June 13, 1803, the plantation was divided into five school districts, three of which were within the present limits of Porter, and two within the limits of Brownfield.

INCORPORATION OF PORTER

Plantation government was maintained for five years before an act was passed admitting Porter to the sisterhood of towns in the Commonwealth. This act passed the Legislature of Massachusetts the same year as those incorporating Denmark and Hiram and received the signature of Governor Strong on Feb. 20, 1807.

The act describes the bounds of the newly made town as follows: Beginning on the north bank of Great Ossipee river, on the line between the State of New Hampshire and the District of Maine, thence northwardly by the New Hampshire line one thousand and nine hundred and seventy rods to a stake and stones; thence south eighty-three degrees east one thousand and three hundred rods to a stake and stones on the east line of the plantation of said Porterfield; thence southwardly by said Porterfield lines to Great Ossipee river; thence up the middle of said river to the New Hampshire line, the place begun at."

The southwestern corner of this town rests upon an insignificant island in the Great Ossipee river but this island has the unusual importance of forming a portion of four towns, three counties and two states.

The meeting called to organize the newly incorporated town was held just one month from the day of incorporation at the dwelling house of James Coffin. That pioneer was selected as moderator and as such filled the first town office. Hanson Libby was chosen town clerk; David Moulton, James Coffin and Hezekiah Bickford, selectmen and assessors; John Stacy, treasurer, and William French, constable and collector.

The town was soon running as smoothly as towns on the frontier one hundred years ago were wont to run. The ever recurring annual town meeting was the event of the year which produced the most interest in the minds of the settlers. The usual appropriations were made, after much deliberation and argument, and the men chosen to fill the offices of the town generally reflected credit upon the good judgment of the voters and honor to themselves. Until Nov. 2, 1812, the meetings seem to have been regularly held on the premises of Mr. Coffin. On that date, and thereafter, generally, until Nov. 1, 1824, they were held in the first district school house. In 1824 the north meeting-house became the property of the town and was first occupied for town purposes.

MILITARY HISTORY.

The military record which has been made by the men of Porter since the pioneer first felled her native trees is one that reflects much credit upon the patriotic blood and hardy courage of the forefathers.

Of the men who settled in Porter, six had seen service in the American struggle for national independence. These men were Samuel Brooks, James Brown, John Fox, David Moulton, Joseph Pearl and Josiah Wood. These men all passed their later days in this town where all (?) now lie buried.

In response to the call for volunteers to defend the Union in 1812, twenty-eight men from Porter were found in the service. Many of these men marched to the defense of Portland, but were not called upon to participate in actual combat with the enemy. Following are the names: Job. Bailey, Wm. Bickford, John Brooks, Samuel Brooks, Nath'l Cook, Nath'l Cook, 2d., Edward Fox, Ephraim Fox, John Hays, Jr., David Hodsdon, Jas. Libby, John Libby, Jacob Mason, Francis Mathews,——McIntire, John Moulton, John Pearl, Simeon Pearl, Diamond Pearl, Jona. Philbrick, Perkins Philbrick, Simon Philbrick, Daniel Sargent, Samuel Stanley, Samuel Tibbetts, John Thompson, Hugh Tucker, Jr., and Daniel Wentworth. Of these men Jacob Mason was the only one who did not return. He died of disease Oct. 26, 1813.

An unusually large number of men for a small Maine town were enlisted in the Mexican War, and few returned from the ranks to their native town. Samuel Brooks, 3d., died in the city of Mexico, Mar. 19, 1848; Edward Fox died in Vera Cruz July 23, 1848; George W. Pearl died in the city of Mexico; Jonathan Stacy, son of Oliver, died at home soon after being discharged, dying of disease contracted in the service; Jas. and Thomas B. Peters, sons of Thomas, are supposed to have died in the service. Geo. W. Kennard, also of Porter, was enlisted in this war.

CIVIL WAR.

In the great struggle for the preservation of the Union eighty-one men of Porter were enrolled upon the rolls of the American Army, seventy-eight of whom belonged to Maine regiments. Below we give a list of these men, with the company and regiment. Those starred are men who died in the service, or in consequence of wounds or disease contracted in the service.

INDUSTRIAL ACCOUNT.

At the present time there are no large mills within the bounds of this town. The early mills which were built around one hundred years ago have mostly served their day and passed on. The chief industries at Kezar Falls are located on the Parsonsfield side, with two or three saw mills in South Hiram.

A saw mill was erected at Porter village as early as 1799. Another on the same stream not far from the Stanley, or Roberts pond was built about the same time. The saw mill formerly operated by Stephen Libby was built near the site of Ashley Weeks mills and was in operation as early as 1805. Mr. Weeks mill was for many years operated by his father, John Weeks.

The first grist mill in Porter was built in 1793, by Caleb Emery, on the outlet to Colcord pond. Another was probably built about the same time at Porter village. Prior to the erection of these mills the settlers carried their corn to the mills in Parsonsfield or Fryeburg. The mill at the outlet of Colcord pond, known as the Colcord mills, were later owned by David A. Colcord. Phineas Colcord, his brother, was "miller" here for many years as also was Caleb Colcord. G. W. Colcord, son of David, did a good lumbering business here following his father. Samuel Stanley, a thrifty millman of Porter, was operating the mill in 1880, after which he sold to David Ridlon. Mr. Ridlon was the last to do business here; the old mill becoming delapidated the machinery was transferred to the mill at Porter village and the frame left to crumble to dust. Other early mills were operated on the same stream. These were owned and operated by Samuel Stanley and others of his family. At that now owned by Chas. Young, Elisha Stanley did an extensive business in lumber sawing around the middle of the century and was succeeded by Seth, his son. The mill below Mr. Young's is now operated by Jos. Douglass, who has added a steam mill to suppliment the water power during the season of low water.

At Porter village, on the same stream, but near its confluence with the Great Ossipee, was one of the largest and busiest mills in town during the first half of the last century. Here were also furniture and bobbin factories. Around these industries grew up the early village which was the center of trade until the mills at Kezar Falls became the nucleus of a more active and thrifty business center; and those at this place began to decline. Daniel Towle was owner of the mill at the village in 1880, and it was here that Samuel Stanley later installed his machinery taken from the old Colcord mill. The old wheel has now ceased, and the place which was once so indispensable to the flourishing community has become overshadowed by the greater successes of her thrifty off spring.

In the northeast corner of the town is another mill site on ten mile river. Here for many years, Calvin Robbins has carried on the milling industry, manufacturing such lumber as the needs of the community demand.

According to Williamson's History of Maine there were nine "mills and machines" in town in 1832, and one distillery. Besides milling much attention has been given to orcharding in Porter, and to the ordinary pursuits of husbandry, including sweet corn raising for the local canning factory.

The canning factory at Kezar Falls was erected in 1887, by Fred T. Flint of Cornish who did a good business here for about five years. He then sold a part interest in the plant and formed the Ossipee Valley Canning Co. which carried on the business for three years. They then leased the shop to H. C. Baxter & Bro. of Brunswick who operated three years, opening the shop last in 1903. The factory has a capacity of 15,000 daily. Mr. E. R. Bachelder of this village was superintendent from the time of opening in 1887. The shop is fitted to do excellent work and it is hoped that it may be again in operation in the near future.

The principal industries of Kezar Falls are located on the south side of the Great Ossipee, in the town of Parsonsfield, on the site of early mills. The first woolen factory was erected here in 1880-81, by the Kezar Falls Woolen Mfg. Co. which was organized with $30,000 capital stock, in Dec. 1880. In April, 1881, Allen Garner was engaged to superintend the setting of machinery. He soon became closely connected with the business and to him is due much of the success attained by the company. Among the early supporters of this industry were Geo. W. Towle and John Devereux of this village, and Mrs. Elmyra Fox of Haverhill, Mass. The first mill erected has recently been replaced by an excellent new structure. Many of the operatives live on the Porter side making this practically of the same interest to this town as to its sister town in which it is situated. This is now a three set mill, employing sixty hands. Allen Garner is Agent and Manager; W. A. Garner, Sec. and Supt.

The Cornish & Kezar Falls Electric Light Co. was organized in Feb. 1901. Work was at once begun on installing and equipping the service which was extended throughout this village, South Hiram and Cornish that year. There are now 2500 lights furnished the several villages. Allen Garner is Pres. and Genl. Mgr.; W. A. Garner, Sec. and Treas. The power house is located on the Parsonsfield side.

Another important industry located near the woolen mill, at the end of the bridge is the Kezar Falls Bobbin Co. From a small beginning made in 1882, by W. O. Merrifield, this has reached considerable business proportions, giving employment to thirty-five men. Mr. Merrifield has remained in charge of the business since its inception. The present company was incorporated in 1905, and the old grist mill built by John Devereux and so long run by Orman Woodbury, was leased for enlarging the business.

CHURCH SOCIETIES.

Many of the early residents of Porterfield plantation united with the people of Brownfield in establishing the Congregational church in that town in 1804, and in settling

"Pastor Rice" who served so long and so acceptably.

A Baptist Church was formed in the southern part of the plantation in 1806 or 1807, during the missionary labors of Rev. Lemuel Rich of Machias. Among the earliest members of this church were David Moulton and wife Dorothy, Mesbach Libby, Daniel Knowles and wife Mary, Chas. Nutter, Simeon Libby and wife Hannah, Mary Libby, wife of Stephen, Jas. Libby, John Libby, Misses Mary, Jemima, and Sally Libby, Tryphene Mason, wife of John, Miss Nancy Elkins, Jemima Fox, wife of Elijah, Deborah, wife of John Fox, Miss Deborah Fox, Olive Fox, wife of Edward, and Miss Abagail Fox. They had no settled minister but were frequently visited by pastors from other churches of whom were Revs. Mr. Rich, Mr. Locke of Hollis, and Mr. Kinsman of Limerick. Their meetings were well attended for many years but the society has now become nearly extinct.

A Free Will Baptist Church was formed in 1807, by Elder John Buzzell of Parsonsfield. In this church we find Wm., John and Jacob French with their wives, Wm. and Joseph Stanley and their wives, Bethany, wife of Samuel Hodsdon, Ruth, wife of John Stacy, Henry Tibbetts and wife Hannah, Misses Lucy and Betsey Brooks, Catherine, wife of Joseph Pearl, and Betsey, wife of John Mason, 2d. among the early members. For many years no pastors were settled but the society was ministered to by Elders Benj. Randall, John Buzzell, Aaron Buzzell, John Colby and others of their shepherds. Regular services were held at their own place of worship in this town or at North Parsonsfield; the latter being the place of gathering the yearly meeting, when every neighborhood for miles around was represented. In 1824, Elder Jas. Sawyer was settled pastor at which time the North meeting house of Porter was the place of worship. At the present time there are 35 members in Porter. No pastor is settled, but Rev. Jas. Perry of Parsonsfield has conducted services for the past three years. Regular social services are maintained and the monthly and quarterly conferences well attended. Jacob H. French is clerk to whom we are indebted for much of the above.

Kezar Falls Methodist Episcopal Church. The earliest recorded preaching by men of this denomination was in 1832, when Revs. David Copeland and Geo. D. Strout held several meetings in different parts of the town. The first class was formed in December of that year and was connected with the Baldwin circuit. Porter became a separate charge in 1839, and Freeman Yates was appointed pastor, remaining two years. A parsonage was erected in 1843-44, during the pastorate of Rev. Jas. McMillan. In 1845, services were held in the Cole school house and in Tripp's school house every alternate Sabbath and in the old meeting houses at Kezar Falls and at the Centre every Sunday. Until 1850, regular conference appointments were made to this charge. That year it was connected with the Cornish charge and had occasional preaching until 1866, principally by Bro. A. P. Sanborn, a local preacher at Hiram. In 1865, Hiram Mission was established, embracing Hiram, Denmark and Porter, and placed under the care of Rev. A. D. Dexter. This resulted in a revival during the early part of 1866, and in April Rev. Kinsman Atkinson was appointed pastor of the Kezar Falls Church. During the three years he was with the church it was reorganized and greatly strengthened. The old parsonage was sold in 1866, and the present house in the village bought. The next year the old meeting house was repaired. In 1869, Rev. G. W. Barber was appointed pastor and the name changed from the Porter to the Kezar Falls charge. Rev. Mr. Barber was reappointed in 1870. Succeeding pastors on this charge have been: Revs. John Mitchell, 1871-73; A. C. Trafton, 1874-75; H. F. A. Patterson, 1876; A. R. Sylvester, 1877-78; J. B. Budden, 1879; M. B. Bartlett, 1880; Alpha Turner, 1881-83; Kinsman Atkinson, 1884; W. E. Morse, 1885; H. B. Mitchell, 1886; John Collins, 1887-88; H. F. A. Patterson, 1889; A. W. Waterhouse, 1890-91; Jas. L. Folson, 1892; M. E. King, 1893-95; F. Grovenor, 1896; Jas. Nixon, 1897-98; J. H. Bounds, 1899-1900; F. C. Potter, 1901-02; and Rev. H. A. Peare, 1903-06.

The old meeting house was removed in 1882, and the corner stone of the present beautiful church was laid Oct. 19, of that year. C. H. Kimball was the architect; Freeman Foss, master builder; Alpha Turner, pastor. Electric lights were installed during the pastorate of Rev. F. C. Potter at a cost of $100. The church property is valued at $3000. The membership of the church now numbers seventy-five.

The Advent Church at Kezar Falls was organized May 21, 1887, by Messrs Moses Norton and Frank Lord. The school house used as a place of worship was bought by the parish society in December, 1889, and remodeled into a neat chapel which is now the church home. Different preachers have been employed. Rev. J. E. Cross was pastor for the years of 1896 and 1897. Other preachers have been Jared Whitman of Old Orchard, Jesse Gay of Saco, R. F. Emerson of East Rochester, A. R. Stevens of So. Windham, A. B. Blanchard of Westbrook, and W. M. Glidden of South Effingham, N. H. Mr. Stevens now preaches here once a month. The society has fourteen members.

SCHOOLS IN PORTER.

From the records of Porterfield plantation we learn that early provision was made for the maintainence of schools among the settlers families. The plantation was organized in July, 1802, and the following April the sum of $200 was appropriated for schools; a very liberal amount for the young colony. At a meeting held June 13, 1803, the plantation was divided into five school districts, three of which were within the present bounds of Porter, and two within the limits of Brownfield. The following is a list of the names as recorded in the three districts of Porter:

FIRST DISTRICT.	SECOND DISTRICT.	THIRD DISTRICT.
Thomas Randall	David Moulton	Isaac Knowles
Samuel Richards	Simeon Libby	Samuel Brooks
S. Richards, 2d	Stephen Libby	Henry Floyd
Joseph Pottle	Edward Fox	Hezek'h Bickford
John French	Mesbach Libby, Jr.	Joseph Pearl
Wm. French	John Mason	John Hayes

At this time there were no settlers in the eastern part of the town. The first school district embraced the families in the southern part, the second those in the middle, and the third those in the northern part of the present town of Porter.

Prior to 1812, the town meetings were held in the house or barn of Jas. Coffin, but in November that year, a meeting was called in the new school house in district number one. In 1825, Porter had five school districts and 193 scholars attending. The towns population was then 620.

The growth and developement of the schools of this town have followed the course of her sister towns. Better facilities for educating her youth have been continually sought, better fitted teachers, better text books, but the number of scholars has gradually decreased during the last quarter century.

The village school house was erected in 1889, and the bell added in 1904. A tuition school was kept at the village by Silas A. McDonald for the more advanced pupils. This was followed by the Precinct school, provided by the organization of the village for the purpose of raising money for advanced education. This was maintained during the winters of 1899-1901, under the instruction of Mr.

McDonald and L. L. Powell. The present high school was established by the appropriation of the sum of $250 in 1904. This amount is raised each year and a similar amount is received from the state treasury. Harvey D. Granville was principal for the first two years. The present principal is Miss Andrews; Miss Piper, assistant. The school numbers about fifty students.

PROFESSIONAL MEN.

PHYSICIANS.

We find no record of physicians in Porter outside of those at Kezar Falls. Dr. Wm. Sweat removed from North Parsonsfield to the south side of the river at Kezar Falls about 1845, but removed to New Bedford two years later. He was a son of Dr. Moses Sweat and one of a notable family of physicians in Parsonsfield. Thompson Lincoln removed to this village, Porter side, about 1860, and was soon followed by Calvin F. Bonney. He practiced here from 1847 to 1852, when he removed to Cornish, and later to Manchester, N. H. Dr. R. M. Poindexter was probably the next resident physician in Porter. He removed to the West. Dr. E. R. Chellis the present physician, came to this village from Newfield in April, 1868, immediately after graduating from the Eclectic Medical College of Penna. Dr. F. G. Devereux, a graduate of the N. Y. College of Physicians and Surgeons, 1880, located on the Parsonsfield side at Kezar Falls the same year and has extended his practice to both sides of the Ossipee.

LAWYERS AT KEZAR FALLS.

"Lawyer Wright" was an early member of the bar who resided on the south side of the river at this village; here he was followed by Emery S. Ridlon in 1867. Mr. Ridlon remained five years when he removed to Portland.

F. W. Ridlon, a native of Porter, began the practice of law in his native town and here remained many years; he died in Portland. Geo. E. Davis, also a native of Porter, located on the Parsonsfield side cotemporary with the above and is still in practice. E. F. Gentlemen and Chas. T. Fox have practiced law at this village. Francis A. Fox, admitted to the bar in 1888 or 1889, began the practice of law with G. E. Davis soon after. He has for some years been located on the Porter side and is the only representative of this profession now in town.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Charter Oak Grange, P. of H., No. 146, was organized in 1875, but was not long continued. The grange was reorganized May 28, 1903, with 20 members which has increased to 152 at the present time. John S. Rounds was chosen master at the time of organization. He was followed in the chair by Charles Cole, after which he was again chosen master. Meetings are held in the K. of P. Hall. Much interest is shown and the work of the Grange is most beneficial to its members and to the community. The leading officers for 1907 are Geo. E. Davis, Master; C. E. Trueworthy, Over.;

J. S. Rounds, Lec.; Sidney Ridlon, St'd; C. D. Ridlon, Treas.; and Myrtle Stacy, Sec.

Account furnished by the secretary.

The First Bridge across the Great Ossipee at Porter village was constructed between 1795 and 1800; the second in 1808; and the present covered bridge, in 1876. The first river bridge at Kezar Falls was built by subscription in 1833, and the covered bridge at the same place in 1869.—Moulton's "History of Porter."

The Postoffice at Porter was established as "Porter Bridge" Aug. 20, 1823, and Wm. Fowle, Jr. appointed postmaster; Kezar Falls office was established Dec. 14, 1839, Flanders Newbegin, P. M.; Stanley office, established April 6, 1899, with Martha J. Young, P. M., has been recently discontinued.

Denmark St., East Brownfield, Me.

Census-1907

The population of the towns of Brownfield, Denmark, Hiram and Porter has been arranged in families, where that arrangement has been possible. In these families, in addition to the resident living members, the names of the non-resident members are included. It should be borne in mind that this plan does not include the names of all former residents of this town, as the names of the non-residents appear only when one or both of the parents are still living in the town. After the name of each non-resident will be found the present address, when such address has been given to us. Non-residents are indicated by the (*).

When a daughter in a family has married, her name taken in marriage appears after her given name in parenthesis, the name preceded by a small m, thus: (m).

Following the names of the population is the occupations. To designate these we have used the more common abbreviations and contractions, as follows: Farmer—far; carpenter—car; railroad service—R R ser; student, a member of an advanced institution of learning—stu; pupil, a member of a lower grade of schools (including all who have reached the age of five years)—pl; housework—ho; laborer—lab; physician and surgeon—phy & sur; clergyman—clerg; merchant—mer; teacher—tr; blacksmith—blk; clerk—cl; bookkeeper—bk kpr; lawyer—law; mechanic mech; machinist—mach; engineer—eng; maker—mkr; worker—wkr; work—wk; shoe shop operative— s s op; cotton or woolen mill operatives—mill op; weaver—weav; spinner—spin; electrician—elec; painter—ptr; carriage work—car wk; dress maker—dr mkr; insurance—ins; traveling salesman, or commercial traveler—sales, or coml trav; music teacher—mus tr; teamster—team; general work—genl wk; mariner—mar; employ—emp; retired—retd; telephone operative—tel op; telegraph operative—teleg op.

This Census was taken expressly for this work during the Winter of 1906-7, by Rev. B. V. Davis, of Kent's Hill, Me.
